REEVE & MORDEN,

INDIAN PERISHED.

From our Shannonville Correspondent.

On Tuesday night last, two Indians named Williams and Jacob Claws, started from Northport to cross the ice to the Indian Reserve. When near the latter shore they separated, Claws saying he was going ashore at Bluff Point to spend the night at a house there. Instead of doing so he appears to have attempted to return to Northport, as he was found on the ice near that place, the next morning, where he is supposed to have laid down and perished. Both of them, it is said, were intoxicated, having obtained their whiskey in Demorestville.

Is it not time the municipalities assumed the functions they have so long neglected in respect to limiting licenses, and appointing persons to look after those to whom licenses were granted. We think that if those who in the face of the law are daily dealing out to the poor Indian that which kills both body and soul, were judicially dealt with, and in one or two cases at least, the extreme penalties of the law were enforced; it would have a salutary effect upon the liquor venders generally; and we would suggest the present as a very proper case with which to commence.

On Friday last, as John Davenport was taking dinner at S. Rombough's, in Shannonville, leaving his horse tied at the fence, it being a cold day, the horse justly thinking himself badly used, broke loose and started for home, making a complete wreck of the buggy, which was a new one. That horse does not believe in the cruelty too often practised toward animals.

the girl went to Davis for pills and drops with the advice of the prisoner, but voluntarily went to have the operation, which caused her death performed; then they must acquit the prisoner. There was not a tittle of corroboration of Davis' evidence, and on the testimony of that man depends the whole case. Another point was that if a week did not intervene between the prisoner going to Davis' office in reference to the girl being able to stay at his, Davis' house, and the girl herself going there, then the whole story must be a lie. His Lordship's advice to the jury was to acquit the prisoner. The jury then without leaving the box consulted with each other for a minute, and the Foreman rose on being asked if they had agreed and said "Not Guilty." His Lordship at once told the prisoner he was discharged, the announcement being received with considerable applause, mingled with a few hisses. Mr. Clements then left the Court, amidst the congratulations of his friends.

It is considered probable that the Crown will not go on with the prosecution of Wm. Fraser, charged with being accessory after the fact of the murder of Jane Vaughan Gilmour.

FROM MORDEN.

The Rev. F. Chishlom, agent of the
I. O. G. T., delivered a very fine discourse here last evening, in the M. E.
Church, on Prohibition. The chair was ably filled by Mr. Clancy, who introduced the speaker with a few well timed remarks. I shall not attempt even a synopsis of the lecture; suffice it to say, that though this is the first visit we have had from this able speaker, an earnest desire prevails that it will not be the last; and we must heartily join in the commendations elsewhere bestowed upon him. We congratulate the executive of that noble band of Temperance workers on their having secured such a worthy gentleman to defend the right. At the conclusion of the address, resolutions of thanks were unanimously accorded to the chairman and speaker. Mr. Clancy then (by request) took possession of the Organ, and rendered one of his choice songs, after which the Choir sang God save the Queen, and the benediction was pronounced by Rev. F. B. Stratton.
Thus closed one of the most pleasant temperance meetings ever held here.

The Singing School in this locality is now in full blast. A large attendance of anxious pupils is found here on Monday and Tuesday evenings of each week. Under the tuition of so faithful and laborious a man as Mr. Clancy we cannot fail of success.

It is now settled that the Rev. F. B.
Stratton has consented, after repeated and urgent solicitations, to bring out his well trained band of Juveniles again next week. We have but to announce that fact to secure a crowded prisoner he was discharged, the announcement being received with considerable applause, mingled with a few hisses. Mr. Clements then left the Court, amidst the congratulations of his friends.

It is considered probable that the Crown will not go on with the prosecution of Wm. Fraser, charged with being accessory after the fact of the murder of Jane Vaughan Gilmour.

AN ICELANDIC HOME.

The boys of Iceland must be content with very few acquaintances or playmates. The valleys which produce grass enough for ponies, cattle and sheep, are generally scattered wide apart, divided by ridges of lava so hard and cold that only a few wild flowers succeed in growing in their cracks and hollows. Then, since the farms must be all the larger because the grass is short and grows slowly in such a severe northern climate, the dwellings are rarely nearer than four or five miles apart; and were it not for their swift and nimble ponies, the people would see very little of each other except on Sundays, when they ride long distances to attend worship in their little wooden churches.

But of all boys in the island, not one was so lonely in his situation as Jon Sigurdson. His father lived many miles beyond that broad, grassy plain which stretches from the Geysers to the sea, on the banks of the swift river Thiorva. On each side there were mountains so black and bare that they looked like gigantic piles of coal; but the valley opened to the southward as if to let the sun in, and faraway, when the weather was clear, the snowy top of Mount Hecla shone against the sky.
The farmer Sigurd, Jon's father, was a poor man, or he would not have settled so far away from any neighbors, for he was of a cheerful and social nature, and there were few at Kyrkedal who could vie with him in knowledge of the ancient history and literature of Iceland.

The house was built on a knoll, under a cliff which sheltered it from the violent west and north winds. The walls, of lava stones and turf, were low and broad; and the roofs over dwelling, storehouses, and stables, were covered deep with earth, upon which grew such excellent grass that the ponies were fond of climbing up the sloping corners of the wall in order to get at it. Sometimes they might be seen, cunningly balanced on the steep sides of the roof,

THE CLEMENTS TRIAL.

THE ACQUITTAL OF THE PRISONER.

On the assembling of the Court of Assizes on Saturday, it was announced that there were no more witnesses to be called in the Clements case. Hon. J. H. Cameron then addressed the jury for the prisoner, winding up an address which was listened to with breathless silence, with an earnest appeal to the jury that he might be acquitted without their leaving the box. Mr. Britton then addressed the jury for the prosecution, in a speech for which he was afterwards complimented by Mr. Justice Galt on its moderation. Justice Galt commenced his charge by explaining to the Jury that in allowing Davis to become a witness he did not by any means admit his credibility, that was for them to decide. He had the strongest doubts as to his competency to give his evidence at all, but that was a point for him, the Judge, to decide, and not for them. It was a point on which, if necessity arose, he intended to take the opinion of his brother judges. One thing for the jury to understand was if looked like gigantic piles of coal; but the valley opened to the southward as if to let the sun in, and faraway, when the weather was clear, the snowy top of Mount Hecla shone against the sky. The farmer Sigurd, Jon's father, was a poor man, or he would not have settled so far away from any neighbors, for he was of a cheerful and social nature, and there were few at Kyrkedal who could vie with him in knowledge of the ancient history and literature of Iceland.

The house was built on a knoll, under a cliff which sheltered it from the violent west and north winds. The walls, of lava stones and turf, were low and broad; and the roofs over dwelling, storehouses, and stables, were covered deep with earth, upon which grew such excellent grass that the ponies were fond of climbing up the sloping corners of the wall in order to get at it. Sometimes they might be seen, cunningly balanced on the steep sides of the roof, grazing along the very ridgepoles, or looking over the end of the gable when some member of the family came out of the door, as much as to say, "Get me down if you can!" Around the buildings there was a square wall or enclosure, giving the place the appearance of a little fortress.

On one side of the knoll a hot spring bubbled up. In the morning or evening, when the air was cool, quite a little column of steam arose from it, whirling and broadening as it melted away; but the water was pure and wholesome, as soon as it became cold enough for use. In the front of the house, where the sun shone warmest, Sigurd had laid out a small garden. It was a great labor for him to remove the huge stones and roll them into a protecting wall, to carry good soil from the place where the mountain rills had gradually washed it down from above, and to arrange it so that frosts and cold rains should do the least harm: and the whole family thought themselves suddenly rich, one Summer, when they pulled their first radishes, saw the little bed of potatoes coming into blossom, and the cabbages rolling up their leaves, in order to make, at least, baby-heads before the Winter came.

Within the house, all low was, dark, and dismal. The air was very close and bad, for the stables were only separated from the dwelling room by a narrow passage, and bunches of dry, salt fish, hung on the wall. Besides, it was unusually full of smoke from the fire of peat, and, after a rain, of steam from Sigurd's and Jon's heavy woolen coats. But to the boy it was a delightful, a comfortable home, for within he found shelter, warmth, and food and instruction. The room for visitors seemed to him the most splendid place in the world, because it had a wooden floor, a window with six panes of glass, a colorprint of the King of Denmark, and a geranium in a pot. This was so precious a plant that Jon and his sister Gudrid hardly dared to touch its leaves. They were most afraid to smell it for fear of sniffing away some of its life; and Gudrid, after seeing a leaf of it laid on her dead sister's bosom, instated that some angel, many hundred years ago, had brought the seed straight down from heaven.—Bayard Taylor, in St. Nicholas.

COMMUNICATIONS.

A Communication was received from the Immigration Department, Toronto, relative to the immigration of farm laborers and domestic servants, and asking the Council to state about how many would be required in this section.

On motion it was referred to a Special Committee composed of Messrs. Dollar, Storr, Lane and J. C. Huffman.

Also, one from H. M. Deroche, calling the attention of the Council to the fact that $6,000 had been granted by the Legislature for alterations and improvements on the jail and jail wall.

Accounts from T. H. Waller and Rober Light for repairs on County buildings.

At this stage the Mayor of Napanee make in a passable state said bill—referred to Committee on County Roads.

W. A. Bell moved, sec. by J. Paul, that E. Hooper and J. W. Bell be appointed members of the Board of Audit for 1876.

C. W. Huffman moved, sec. by J. C. Huffman, that E. Hooper and Ira Ham be members of the Board of Audit for 1873.

On a casting vote, E. Hooper and J. W. Bell were appointed.

On motion the Council adjourned till 2 o'clock.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

Council met at 2 o'clock, members all present.

Ira Ham moved seconded by P. W. Miller, that the Clerk be instructed to procure the necessary assessment rolls for the several municipalities.—Carried.

The Special Committee appointed to draft an address for presentation to Mr. Raper, reported as follows:—Mr. J. H. Raper.

Parliamentary Agent of the United Kingdom Alliance:

We, the Warden, and members of the County Council, of the County of Lennox and Addington, do hereby express our full sympathy with you in the grand cause of Temperance, inasmuch as you, respective of any local association, take the broad and exalted platform of uniting all the temperance associations in one grand onset to overthrow one of the most painful agencies, and also one of the most prolific sources of crime, degradation and misery with which suffering humanity is beset; and as you are laboring as you are to lift up and ameliorate the condition of our suffering fellow-creatures, we do most heartily wish you God speed.

Mr. Storr moved that the Warden sign the address just read, and that the Council meet this evening and proceed in a body to the church, where the Warden will present the address. The motion was seconded by J. W. Bell, and carried.

C. W. Huffman presented some accounts from Lemuel Storms, for expenses incurred in hunting up the prisoner Clute now in penitentiary. The account was a somewhat lengthy one, and Mr. Storms was heard in his own behalf, as well as a short statement from the Chief of Police of Napanee.

Sheffield, G. D. Joyner, Reeve;

R. McDonnell, Deputy.

The County Clerk, W. V. Detlor, Esq., presided, and having examined all of the certificates announced that all was now ready for the election of the Warden. It had been previously understood that the number of aspirants for the chair was unusually large this year, but the prevailing impression was that the real contest would be between Messrs. W. N. Dollar of N. Fredericksburgh, and John Hogle of Ernesttown, as they are both old members of the Council, and have both secured a large vote in former years elections. The room was densely crowded with people, some of whom had come a long distance to be present at the Warden election.

THE BALLOT.

On motion of E. Storr, seconded by H. Wilson, the Council proceeded to ballot without any formal nominations being made. The result of the

First Ballot was as follows:—Twenty votes were cast, and were scattered as follows:—W. A. Bell 2, Dollar 5, Hogle 4, Spafford 4, Storr 5. None having received a majority there was no election.

Second Ballot.—Dollar 5, Bell 1, Hogle 7, Storr 4, Spafford 4. No elec-

Accounts from T. H. Waller and Rober Light for repairs on County buildings.

At this stage the Mayor of Napanee entered and introduced to the Council Dr. Palmer, of the Belleville Deaf and Dumb Asylum, as well as Messrs. Gibbard & Casey, of Napanee, on behalf of the Workingman's Temperance Association.

They were welcomed by the Warden, in a few appropriate remarks.

Dr. Palmer expressed his thanks to the members for the cordial reception given him. He had always heard favorable reports of Napanee, and did not know that he had anything further to say in addition to what he had said last night. He was of opinion his visit here would not be in vain, as since his coming he had heard of two or three mutes, whom he thought he would soon have in the institution. He had now four pupils from the County in the asylum, and requested the members to do all they could in seeking persons who were mutes. He referred in particular to a young lad by the name of Denne, who was formerly an inmate of the institute, but who had been taken away by his uncle, who was too poor to keep him in clothes. The lad was a very smart one, and made rapid progress, and ought to have had about two years more education, when he would be a very useful man in society. He was now at work in the shoemaking department in connection with the institute, and was one of the smartest employed there. The only requirements were now, if unable to pay, they would be admitted for seven years free of charge, by a certificate being given from the Reeve of the municipality, or Judge of the County. He also referred to a young person by the name of Meek, near Overton, and asked the members to look after him, as he had formerly been a pupil of the institute.

Mr. Williams announced to the Council that Mr. Raper, a gentleman from

Parliamentary Agent of the United Kingdom Alliance:

We, the Warden, and members of the County Council, of the County of Lennox and Addington, do hereby express our full sympathy with you in the grand cause of Temperance, inasmuch as you, respective of any local association, take the broad and exalted platform of uniting all the temperance associations in one grand onset to overthrow one of the most painful agencies, and also one of the most prolific sources of crime, degradation and misery with which suffering humanity is beset; and as you are laboring as you are to lift up and ameliorate the condition of our suffering fellow-creatures, we do most heartily wish you God speed.

Mr. Storr moved that the Warden sign the address just read, and that the Council meet this evening and proceed in a body to the church, where the Warden will present the address. The motion was seconded by J. W. Bell, and carried.

C. W. Huffman presented some accounts from Lemuel Storms, for expenses incurred in hunting up the prisoner Clute now in penitentiary. The account was a somewhat lengthy one, and Mr. Storms was heard in his own behalf, as well as a short statement from the Chief of Police of Napanee.

Discussion then took place as to whether the Council ought to deal with this matter, many being of opinion it was the municipality of Ernesttown ought to settle it.

Mr. J. W. Bell thought there was no Committee to whom this account could be referred, and said as the dignity of this Council was to be maintained, he would favor the appointment of a committee to whom such matters might be referred.

Mr. Storr suggested it be referred to a Committee composed of Messrs. J. W. Bell, N. Dollar and J. C. Huffman.

It was moved by C. W. Huffman, sec. by Mr. Spafford that $25 be paid Mr. Storms.

In amendment by J. W. Bell, sec. by J. C. Huffman, that this Council do not entertain the account. Carried.

Mr. Dollar moved, sec. by Mr. Davis, that the Warden, Mr. Wright, and C. W. Huffman, be a Committee to inquire into the sureties of the County Treasurer, to report to this Council. Carried.

Moved by Mr. Davis, Sec. by Mr. Dollar, that Ira Ham be added to the Committee on County Reports. Lost.

Mr. Spafford moved, sec. by Mr. Huffman, that Benj. Davy be granted a license to peddle with one horse for one year, at the sum of $8, and stated that the young man was in very poor health, and hoped the Council would grant it. Carried.

Mr. Miller moved, sec. by C. W. Huffman, that S. M. L. Detlor be appointed Trustee for Napanee High School for the year 1876.

In amendment by J. C. Huffman, sec. by Mr. McDonnell, that Dr. Bristol be appointed the Trustee.

The original motion was carried.

Mr. Spafford arose for information on the by-law for the protection of sheep from dogs. It was a question years ago, and brought these seeds straight down from heaven.—Bayard Taylor, in St. Nicholas.

THE COUNTY COUNCIL.

FIRST SESSION.

The first regular session of the new County Council was held on Monday afternoon, commencing at two o'clock. Every representative was present. The following is a full list of the representatives of the various Townships for the current year :

Adolphustown, Peter C. Davis, Reeve.

Amherst Island, Geo. Wright, Reeve. Bath, H. W. Purdy, Reeve. Camden, J. W. Bell, Reeve; G. Paul and R. Madden, Deputies.

Denbeigh, S. Lane, Reeve. Ernesttown, L. C. Spafford, Reeve; John Hogle and C. W. Huffman, Deputies.

Newburgh, W. A. Bell, Reeve.

Richmond, E. Storr, Reeve; Henry Wilson, Deputy.

Sheffield, G. D. Joyner, Reeve; H. McDonnell, Deputy.

The County Clerk, W. V. Detlor, Esq., presided, and having examined all of the certificates announced that all was now ready for the election of the Warden. It had been previously understood that the number of aspirants for the chair was unusually large this year, but the prevailing impression was that the real contest would be between Messrs. W. N. Dollar of N. Fredericksburgh, and John Hogle of Ernesttown, as they are both old members of the Council, and have both secured a large vote in former years elections. The room was densely crowded with people, some of whom had come a long distance to be present at the Warden election.

THE BALLOT.

On motion of E. Storr, seconded by H. Wilson, the Council proceeded to ballot without any formal nominations being made. The result of the

First Ballot was as follows:—Twenty votes were cast, and were scattered as follows:—W. A. Bell 2, Dollar 5, Hogle 4, Spafford 4, Storr 5. None having received a majority there was no election.

Second Ballot.—Dollar 5, Bell 1, Hogle 7, Storr 4, Spafford 4. No election. A committee of seven members name the several standing committees. Four ballots were taken and resulted in the election of the following members: Messrs. J. W. Bell, Dollar, Ham, J. C. Huffman, Paul, Spafford and Storr. The Council then adjourned.

SECOND DAY.

Wednesday, 26th Jan. 1876.

The Council met at 10.30 A. M. the Warden in the chair.

Minutes of previous meeting read, and after discussion by several members as to the appointment of Anditors, on motion the minutes were confirmed.

COMMUNICATIONS.

A Communication was received from the Immigration Department, Toronto, relative to the immigration of farm laborers and domestic servants, and asking the Council to state about how many would be required in this section.

On motion it was referred to a Special Committee composed of Messrs. Dollar, Storr, Lane and J. C. Huffman.

Also, one from H. M. Deroche, calling the attention of the Council to the fact that $6,000 had been granted by the Legislature for alterations and improvements on the jail and jail wall.

Accounts from T. H. Waller and Rober Light for repairs on County buildings.

At this stage the Mayor of Napanee entered and introduced to the Council Dr. Palmer, of the Belleville Deaf and Dumb Asylum, as well as Messrs. Gibbard & Casey, of Napanee, on behalf of the Workingman's Temperance Association.

They were welcomed by the Warden, in a few appropriate remarks.

Dr. Palmer expressed his thanks to the members for the cordial reception given him. He had always heard favorable reports of Napanee, and did not know that he had anything further to say in addition to what he had said last night. He was of opinion his visit here would not be in vain, as since his coming he had heard of two or three mutes, whom he thought he would soon have in the institution. He had now four pupils from the County in the asylum, and requested the members to do all they could in seeking persons who were mutes. He referred in particular to a young lad by the name of Denne, who was formerly an inmate of the institute, but who had been taken away by his uncle, who was too poor to keep him in clothes. The lad was a very smart one, and made rapid progress, and ought to have had about two years more education, when he would be a very useful man in society. He was now at work in the shoemaking department in connection with the institute, and was one of the smartest employed there. The only requirements were now, if unable to pay, they would be admitted for seven years free of charge, by a certificate being given from the Reeve of the municipality, or Judge of the County. He also referred to a young person by the name of Meek, near Overton, and asked the members to look after him, as he had formerly been a pupil of the institute.

Mr. Williams announced to the Council that Mr. Raper, a gentleman from

Parliamentary Agent of the United Kingdom Alliance:

We, the Warden, and members of the County Council, of the County of Lennox and Addington, do hereby express our full sympathy with you in the grand cause of Temperance, inasmuch as you, respective of any local association, take the broad and exalted platform of uniting all the temperance associations in one grand onset to overthrow one of the most painful agencies, and also one of the most prolific sources of crime, degradation and misery with which suffering humanity is beset; and as you are laboring as you are to lift up and ameliorate the condition of our suffering fellow-creatures, we do most heartily wish you God speed.

Mr. Storr moved that the Warden sign the address just read, and that the Council meet this evening and proceed in a body to the church, where the Warden will present the address. The motion was seconded by J. W. Bell, and carried.

C. W. Huffman presented some accounts from Lemuel Storms, for expenses incurred in hunting up the prisoner Clute now in penitentiary. The account was a somewhat lengthy one, and Mr. Storms was heard in his own behalf, as well as a short statement from the Chief of Police of Napanee.

Mr. J. W. Bell thought there was no Committee to whom this account could be referred, and said as the dignity of this Council was to be maintained, he would favor the appointment of a committee to whom such matters might be referred.

Mr. Storr suggested it be referred to a Committee composed of Messrs. J. W. Bell, N. Dollar and J. C. Huffman.

It was moved by C. W. Huffman, sec. by Mr. Spafford that $25 be paid Mr. Storms.

In amendment by J. W. Bell, sec. by J. C. Huffman, that this Council do not entertain the account. Carried.

Mr. Dollar moved, sec. by Mr. Davis, that the Warden, Mr. Wright, and C. W. Huffman, be a Committee to inquire into the sureties of the County Treasurer, to report to this Council. Carried.

Moved by Mr. Davis, Sec. by Mr. Dollar, that Ira Ham be added to the Committee on County Reports. Lost.

Mr. Spafford moved, sec. by Mr. Huffman, that Benj. Davy be granted a license to peddle with one horse for one year, at the sum of $8, and stated that the young man was in very poor health, and hoped the Council would grant it. Carried.

Mr. Miller moved, sec. by C. W. Huffman, that S. M. L. Detlor be appointed Trustee for Napanee High School for the year 1876.

In amendment by J. C. Huffman, sec. by Mr. McDonnell, that Dr. Bristol be appointed the Trustee.

The original motion was carried.

Mr. Spafford arose for information on the by-law for the protection of sheep from dogs. It was a question

THE BALLOT.

On motion of E. Storr, seconded by H. Wilson, the Council proceeded to ballot without any formal nominations being made. The result of the

First Ballot was as follows:—Twenty votes were cast, and were scattered as follows:—W. A. Bell 2, Dollar 5, Hogle 4, Spafford 4, Storr 5. None having received a majority there was no election.

Second Ballot.—Dollar 5, Bell 1, Hogle 7, Storr 4, Spafford 4. No election. Mr. Spafford briefly thanked his friends for their support and stated that he retired.

Third Ballot.—Dollar 8, Hogle 8, Storr 4. Mr. Storr now retired thanking those who supported him.

Fourth Ballot.—Hogle 11, Dollar 9. Mr. Hogle was therefore declared elected.

The Warden was then escorted to the chair by Messrs. Dollar and Storr, the defeated candidates, and the usual oath of office was administered by Judge Wilkinson.

The Warden briefly addressed the Council, thanking them for the honor, and asked the co-operation of every member in performing the responsible duties of the position, so that he may be able to retire at the close of his term with honors.

THE AUDITORS.

The Warden stated the first duty would be the appointment of the two auditors. He would nominate Mr. Arnold P. Booth, of Odessa. Mr. Storr moved that the nomination be confirmed by the Council. Mr. Spafford was of opinion that the nomination of the Warden was equivalent to an appointment, and did not require to be confirmed. There was a considerable discussion on the point, the Warden being of opinion that it was desirable for the Council to confirm the nomination. For the second Auditor there was the usual large number of nominations, almost every member present having a supporter whom he would like to have say in addition to what he had said last night. He was of opinion his visit here would not be in vain, as since his coming he had heard of two or three mutes, whom he thought he would soon have in the institution. He had now four pupils from the County in the asylum, and requested the members to do all they could in seeking persons who were mutes. He referred in particular to a young lad, by the name of Denne, who was formerly an inmate of the institute, but who had been taken away by his uncle, who was too poor to keep him in clothes. He was now at work in the shoemaking department in connection with the institute, and was one of the smartest employed there. The only requirements were now, if unable to pay, they would be admitted for seven years free of charge, by a certificate being given from the Reeve of the municipality, or Judge of the County. He also referred to a young person by the name of Meek, near Overton, and asked the members to look after him, as he had formerly been a pupil of the institute.

Mr. Williams announced to the Council that Mr. Raper, a gentleman from England, and a representative man, would address an audience in the M. E. Church this evening, and invited the Council to attend in a body.

Mr. J. C. Huffman moved, seconded by Mr. Madden, that a Committee be appointed to draft an address to be presented to Mr. Raper this evening. said committee to be composed of Messrs. Storr, J. W. Bell, Madden, Wright, C. R. Miller and the mover.—Carried.

J. W. Bell moved, sec. by I. Ham, that the thanks of the Council be tendered Dr. Palmer for the deep interest taken by him in the care and instruction of Deaf and Dumb mutes from these counties attending the institution at Belleville, and also reciprocate with him in his labor of love for the unfortunate. Carried unanimously by a standing vote.

The Committee appointed to strike the Standing Committees for the year reported as follows:

On Finance—J. W. Bell, Chairman, Ira Ham, E. Storr, Peter Davis, J. C. Huffman.

Roads and Bridges—W. A. Bell, Chairman; Robt. Madden, C. W. Huffman, P. W. Miller, Ross, McDonnell, Henry Wilson.

County Property—Dollar, Chairman; Geo. Paul, C. R. Miller, W. A. Bell, L. C. Spafford.

Education and Printing—Spafford, Chairman; S. Lane, Ham, Joyner, Purdy, Wright.

Moved and sec. that the report as presented be adopted. Carried.

Mr. McDonnell brought in a numerous signed petition, praying that the hill on the road from Sheffield to Napanee, known as Asselstine's Hill, be granted a sum of money to repair and

Mr. Storr suggested it be referred to a Committee composed of Messrs. J. W. Bell, N. Dollar and J. C. Huffman.

It was moved by C. W. Huffman, sec. by Mr. Spafford that $25 be paid Mr. Storms.

In amendment by J. W. Bell, sec. by J. C. Huffman, that this Council do not entertain the account. Carried.

Mr. Dollar moved, sec. by Mr. Davis, that the Warden, Mr. Wright, and C. W. Huffman, be a Committee to inquire into the sureties of the County Treasurer, to report to this Council. Carried.

Moved by Mr. Davis, Sec. by Mr. Dollar, that Ira Ham be added to the Committee on County Reports. Lost.

Mr. Spafford moved, sec. by Mr. Huffman, that Benj. Davy be granted a license to peddle with one horse for one year, at the sum of $8, and stated that the young man was in very poor health, and hoped the Council would grant it. Carried.

Mr. Miller moved, sec. by C. W. Huffman, that S. M. L. Detlor be appointed Trustee for Napanee High School for the year 1876.

In amendment by J. C. Huffman, sec. by Mr. McDonnell, that Dr. Bristol be appointed the Trustee.

The original motion was carried.

Mr. Spafford arose for information on the by-law for the protection of sheep from dogs. It was a question on which legislation was required.

Mr. Ham said this Council had power to revive such a law if they so desired it.

Mr. Spafford said he was aware the first law imposing a tax on dogs had been made by the Legislature, who gave municipalities power to enact such a law.

Several other members spoke on the subject and the general opinion seemed to be that a By-Law ought to be enacted imposing a tax on all dogs, there was a greater slaughter of sheep now than when a tax was imposed.

Mr. Spafford gave notice that he would to-morrow introduce a By-Law reviving a repealed By-Law in reference to the taxing of dogs.

On motion the Council adjourned till to-morrow morning at 10 o'clock.

FROM ADOLPHUSTOWN.

The Division Court was held here Saturday. The Court room was crowded to its utmost to hear the suit tried between Thos. Trumpour, plaintiff, and Downey Bro's. Agent, defendants. The plaintiff claiming pay for a load of barley put on the Nellie. P. Downey, at Mallory's Point, last fall, that defendants had no account of. It seemed by the evidence that the boat was loaded in a very unbusiness-like manner. The Judge considered it an error, and gave a verdict for plaintiff. The Judge's decision and address was realized by the people to be one of the best.

Rowe for plaintiff, Morden for defendant.

BAY OF QUINTE NAVIGATION CO.

The Annual Meeting of the stockholders of the Bay of Quinte and Oswego Navigation Company, was held at the office of Downey & Pope on Wednesday last and was largely attended.

The report of Mr. R. Downey, Managing Director and Treasurer, was brought up before the meeting and unanimously approved of.

It was decided to fit out the Kincardine and Oswego Belle in first class style in every respect, and place on the Oswego route the coming season.

A vote of thanks was passed to Mr Downey for the able manner in which he had managed the affairs of the Company, and the judgement and taste displayed by him in the fitting out of the new steamer Oswego Belle.

The following named gentlemen were chosen Directors for the ensuing year, C. Allison, of Oswego; E. W. Rathbun, of Mill Point; R. Downey and W. S. Williams of Napanee; W. H. Campbell and Geo. H. Pope of Belleville, and Mr. Simpson of St. Catharines.

At a subsequent meeting of the Directors Mr. E. W. Rathbun was re-elected President, Mr. C. Allison, Vice-President and Mr. R. Downey, Managing Director and Treasurer.

A cordial vote of thanks was tendered to the President for the able manner in which he had presided over the deliberations of the Board, and the interest taken by him in the prosperity of the Company. The Board then adjourned to meet in Napanee in March. Ontario.

POTATOES PLANTED DEEP.—We tried the experiment this year, on several alternate rows of potatoes about thirty rods long, of planting a part about two or three inches deep, and another part five inches deep. The latter invariably produced about 20 to 25 per cent. more potatoes, the treatment in every other respect being the same: They were cultivated flat, which always give more than when ridged.—Country Gentleman.

—Keep plenty of dry dust for poultry to wallow in and they never will be suffer from mankind. The havoc made of their nests by the egg-hunter is almost beyond computation. On the Madeira alone about 4,000,000 eggs are annually sacrificed in the manufacture of butter.

This substance is chiefly used for lampoil, yet in the cuisine of the natives it is often employed in the cooking. It is a villainous compound, being made with a magnificent disregard of purity and cleanliness, both in the materials and in the process of manufacture. The eggs are dug out of the nests and thrown—whether fresh or addled—into the canoe of the hunter. The shells are broken by treading upon them, and the fat yolks mingled in a thick, yellow fluid. Exposed to the rays of the sun the oil rises to the surface, is skimmed off into jars, and is then ready for use. "The decomposition of manifold impurities," says Mr. Keller, "and the circumstance that often some of the eggs have been already half-hatched by the sun, give it an abominable flavor, recalling to mind Russia-leather and tanneries."

The tartaruga and other turtles are hunted with the bow and arrow, out of the laying season. A long, fine strip of pineapple fiber is attached to the arrow-head and wound about the shaft. This unrolls as the stricken animal dives, and the loosened shaft, floating on the water, shows the position of the victim. The fisherman has then but to haul in his prey, and, as soon as it reaches the surface, finish it with a heavy blow.—Chicago Tribune.

WHITE FLOUR NOT THE BERT.

Those who have thoroughly investigated the matter assure us that bread made from the fine white flour is "starvation food." It does not contain the elements necessary to properly nourish and sustain the human body. If parents expect their children to grow up with good health, strong nerves, perfect teeth, good eyes and hair, they must not give them fine white flour bread as a constant article of diet. It is believed that the prevalence of early decaying teeth and premature grayness and baldness of the head are largely due to the general use of the white flour. The whole of the wheat, reduced to a uniform condition, without loss or injury of the food elements, makes a nutritious food, which contains all the elements necessary for

SNOW SHEDS.—Nearly a mile in length of snow sheds have been erected along the exposed parts of the Intercolonial Railway through the London-derry mountains, Nova Scotia. In former winters these covered portions of the road were the scenes of many snow blockades, and the new sheds, in addition to those formerly built, will keep the road free from heavy drifts in future. They will hardly be required this winter, unless there is more snow East than about Napanee.

BRAZILIAN TURTLES AND TURTLE-BUTTER.

ONE of the most abundant and useful animals of tropical South America is the turtle, which yields to the natives a large supply of food in its flesh and its eggs. So eagerly and incessantly has the animal been hunted for many years that, great as are its numbers at the present time, they have susceptibly diminished within a quiet recent period, and the day seems not far distant when it may be altogether exterminated. ### PERMANENT CURE FOR CANCER.

Mrs. M. A. V., gives in the Country Gentleman this process for curing cancer: A sticking plaster is put over the cancer, with a circular piece cut out of the center a little larger than the cancer, and a small circular rim of healthy skin next to it is exposed. Then a plaster, made of chloride of zinc, blood root, and wheat flour, is spread on a piece of muslin of the size of the circular opening, and is applied to the cancer twenty-four hours. On removing it the cancer will be found as though burned into it, appearing of the color and hardness of an old shoe, and the circular rim outside of it will appear white and parboiled as if scalded by hot steam. The wound is now dressed, and the outside rim soon suppurates, and the cancer comes out a hard lump, and the place heals up.

The plaster kills the cancer, so that it sloughs out like dead flesh, and never grows again. The application is painful, but the pain is of comparatively brief duration which any one so affected cheerfully endures. Not a case has been known of the reappearance of cancer where this remedy has been applied. This cure for cancer was publish-

BRAZILIAN TURTLES AND TURTLE-BUTTER.

ONE of the most abundant and useful animals of tropical South America is the turtle, which yields to the natives a large supply of food in its flesh and its eggs. So eagerly and incessantly has the animal been hunted for many years that, great as are its numbers at the present time, they have susceptibly diminished within a quiet recent period, and the day seems not far distant when it may be altogether exterminated. According to Mr. Franz Keller, there are five species of turtles living on the Amazon and its affluents, the largest and most valuable of which is called the tartarogz. The market price of this species has doubled during the last half-dozen years, showing that it is gradually growing more scarce. It is hunted at all seasons and the annual slaughter is enormous.

In the month of September the turtles visit the sandy shoals of the rivers to deposit their eggs, and are then assembled in incredible numbers. So blinded are they to all danger while engaged in providing for the perpetuation of their species that they easily become a prey to the hunter, who has only to turn as many upon their backs as he had a mind to and afterward dispatch them at his leisure. At a single point, Prair de Tamundua, on the Madeira River, 3,000 or 4,000 turtles are regularly caught in each laying season besides those, amounting to many hundreds, that are taken by passing canoes for immediate consumption, or to be kept as live-stock.

The turtle, with wonderful rapidity, digs a large hole in the sand a foot and a half deep, wherein it lays from 100 to 200 eggs. So great is the throng of builders intent upon the same work eager for an opportunity, that the nests already made are often broken up and their contents scattered about. Yet the depredations that the turtles unwittingly practice upon each other are as nothing compared with those which they plaster, made of chloride of zinc, blood root, and wheat flour, is spread on a piece of muslin of the size of the circular opening, and is applied to the cancer twenty-four hours. On removing it the cancer will be found as though burned into it, appearing of the color and hardness of an old shoe, and the circular rim outside of it will appear white and parboiled as if scalded by hot steam. The wound is now dressed, and the outside rim soon suppurates, and the cancer comes out a hard lump, and the place heals up.

The plaster kills the cancer, so that it sloughs out like dead flesh, and never grows again. The application is painful, but the pain is of comparatively brief duration which any one so affected cheerfully endures. Not a case has been known of the reappearance of cancer where this remedy has been applied. This cure for cancer was published 1866. Perhaps there are many who can tell more about it.

WELSH RAREBIT.—Cut up cheese fine, and place in a saucepan with a little butter and a spoonful or two of vinegar, and boil until the cheese is well dissolved. Cut a slice of bread, pour on the cheese, season with pepper, salt and ketchup.

POUND CAKE.—To a pound of sifted sugar add a pound of fresh butter; and mix them with the hand ten minutes; put to them nine yolks and five whites of eggs well beaten; whisk all well, and add a pound of sifted flour, a few caraway seeds, a quarter of a pound of candied orange peel or citron cut in slices, a few currants washed and pickled, and mix all together as lightly as possible.

E. W. HETH, of Grand Rapids, Mich., writes to the Detroit Free Press that he has succeeded admirably in keeping his stock of onions over until spring each season by cutting a hole in the middle of his hay mow and burying his crop, to remain there for the advanced prices of late spring. He says, however, that he past year his crop was more bulky than his yield to hay, and the plan could not be carried out.

The ever-increasing circulation of this excellent monthly proves its continued adaptation to popular desires and needs. Indeed, when we think into how many homes it penetrates every month, we must consider it as one of the educators as well as entertainers of the public minds.—Boston Globe.

The character which this Magazine possesses for variety, enterprise, artistic wealth, and literary culture that has kept pace with, if it has not led the times, should cause its conductors to regard it with justifiable complacency. The Magazine has done good and not evil all the days of its life.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Some of the most popular of modern novles have first appeared as serials in this Magazine. In all respects, it is an excellent periodical, and fully deserves its great success.—Philadelphia Ledger.

I have been one of the greatest sufferers from the effects of Asthma, having had it in its most severe form for twenty years. For the last six years of that time I had not lain six nights in bed, for seven years had such severe pain in my left side that I could not rest on it, my appetite was gone, and I had swelling in the region of my stomach, and general weakness. This condition was constantly becoming worse until last December, when I had GRAHAM'S PAIN EXTRACTOR, although I had no hope of it benefiting me, I yielded to the suggestion. The first dose I took relieved the difficulty of my breathing, and before I had two bottles used I was completely cured and have since enjoyed as good health as ever I did.

MR. RAPER'S VISIT.

A MOST ENTHUSIASTIC TEMPERANCE DEMONSTRATION.

Mr. J. H. Raper of England, one of the leading spirits in connection with the United Kingdom Alliance—an association similar in its objects to our Prohibitory League, visited Napanee yesterday, in connection with his tour of observation through the United States and Canada, to learn by personal observation what have been the result of legislation on this continent in behalf of the temperance movement. His name is so well known and so much respected by intelligent temperance men every-where that wherever he has gone he has been received with becoming honours. At his landing in New York he was publicly entertained by the National Temperance Association, and some of the leading men of the nation were present. Others of the American cities also did him honour. At Montreal there was a splendid demonstration in his favour in connection with the Quebec Prohibitory League, and at our Dominion capital he received an ovation.

We doubt, however, if since he landed on our shores he any where had a more enthusiastic reception than that given him at Napanee last night. His coming had been thoroughly announced through the press, and the pulpit, and for days past the streets have been placarded, and hundreds of neatly printed circulars have been in circulation inviting all to attend his meeting.

Mr. Raper reached Napanee yesterday morning and was the guest of Mayor Williams. Before the time for

Mr. Raper was then received with enthusiasm. He is a gentleman of fine appearance, about 60 years of age, and yet in his full vigour. He is an easy and pleasant speaker, and his address of an hour and a half was listened to with the greatest interest, most seeming to regret when it was closed.

THE SPEECH.

We much regret that want of space compels us to give but the merest mention to the different points of the speech delivered. He said he did not make any pretensions to oratory, but had been one of the lay workers in connection with the efforts in England to suppress the evils of the drink traffic. In England the movement had reached such a stage that the experience of the workings of temperance legislation on this side of the Atlantic became a matter of great interest and controversy with them. There the reports were busily spread that the Maine law was a failure, and other prohibitory efforts had been of no practical value, and he had come to see for himself what were the results and what were the defects, if such exist. He had been in Maine and a number of the other States and did not hesitate to say that he had seen liquors sold contrary to law in some places, but he could say the same of London, or Liverpool, or any town in England where he had ever been. In fact, all our laws were violated, but the existence and partial enforcement of the laws did much to suppress crime, and to maintain good order and protection to society.

In reference to the address from the County Council, he remarked that he felt a great desire to visit the Council while in session, that he might see something of its practical workings. In England the body had no counterpart, and it was felt that in local matters the people had not so direct a control as they ought to have. When Mr. Forster, one of England's most prominent statesmen, was in Canada a year or so ago, he carefully noticed the system of our Councils, and had since recommended the adoption of something of the kind at home. They have a sort of local parliament, but it was not so amenable to public opinion; it was not a body elected direct by the people that they could thrust out at pleasure. They had been told of the system in the United States, but in England there was a strong prejudice against "Yankee Institutions," and anything branded with that epithet was received with disfavor; but when they found these municipal institutions thriving on British soil, as in Canada, they were received with greater favor. He had been anxious to ascertain since he came here, how the Council had disposed of the intolerable nuisances of toll-bars, such as they had everywhere with them yet, and was glad to find in this county that such had been removed.

He also referred, in fitting terms, to bition no licenses can be granted. It had its origin in England the same year as the Dunkin Bill in Canada, but here it was obtained and with them they would have to work hard yet before they get it, as public opinion was much less advanced than among ourselves on the subject. The Bill was usually spoken of among them as The Permissive Bill, just as though it was the only one. Last session of their Parliament fifteen permissive bills were passed, but people seemed to think that this was the only one worthy of such a designation. The speaker then gave some interesting facts in regard to the struggle in Parliament in reference to it. The majority of the Irish members vote in its favor, and the representatives of the largest constituencies in Scotland and England. He had full confidence that the day would soon come when it would become the established law of the nation. He then closed his interesting address with an eloquent appeal for all to unite in the great temperance effort.

A vote of thanks was moved by the Warden of the County, seconded by Dr. Palmer, of Belleville, and unanimously adopted. The benediction was pronounced by Rev. B. Lane, A. B.

TOWN COUNCIL.

SPECIAL MEETING.

A special meeting of the Town Council was held at the Council Chamber, on Thursday evening of last week, on a petition presented to the Mayor by six of the Councillors.

The meeting was called to consider a petition from the Workingman's Temperance Association, praying the Council to draft a by-law to be submitted to the people at an early day, raising the present license of shops and taverns to somewhere in the vicinity of $400.

The Council met at 7:30 o'clock. the Mayor in the chair, all the members being present except Councillor Spencer.

The Mayor briefly stated the object for which the meeting had been called, and read the petition presented, as well as one from the tavern and shop keepers, praying that the licenses be allowed to remain as at present.

Dr. Ruttan asked if the meeting had been called legally, and was told by the Mayor that it had, due notice being given to each member.

Mr. Gibson moved, sec. by Mr. Huffman, that the prayer of the petition of the Workingman's Temperance Association be granted.

In amendment by Mr. Geddes, sec. by Mr. Ruttan, that the prayer of the petition of the tavern and shop keepers be granted.

Dr. Ruttan said he thought this move a very important one, and one that required the very gravest consideration, and thought that those who

Mr. Raper reached Napanee yesterday morning and was the guest of Mayor Williams. Before the time for the meeting arrived the Workingman's Temperance Association marched from their hall, proceeded by the Napanee Brass Band, to escort the gentleman to the meeting. When the procession came in front of the fine mansion of the Mayor a halt was made and Mr. Raper was introduced to the Association by the President, Mr. Allen, Chief of Police. He was received with three rousing cheers and an appropriate piece by the Band, after which Mr. Raper acknowledged the honour in appropriate terms. He said never before had he enjoyed the honour of standing, as he now did, with the Mayor on the one side and the Chief of Police on the other, both supporting him cordially in the great temperance work. He was a Good Templar, a Son of Temperance and a member of other associations, but it was as a representative of a principle and not of an association that he now was honoured. He thanked the Association most warmly for this honour.

Dr. Palmer, Superintendent of the Government Deaf and Dumb Institution was also introduced as a thorough going tee-totaler, and received with hearty cheers. He acknowledged the honour in a few words.

The procession now reformed, headed by Mr. Raper, Mayor Williams, R. G. Secretary of the Good Templars, Dr. Palmer, T. W. Casey G. W. Secretary of Canada, Mr. Gibbard, and Chief Allen, preceded by the Band.

He had been anxious to ascertain since he came here, how the Council had disposed of the intolerable nuisances of toll-bars, such as they had everywhere with them yet, and was glad to find in this county that such had been removed.

He also referred, in fitting terms, to the address from the Workingmen and the Good Templars. These associations were necessary, so that those once having the appetite of drink could be helped by their comrades if they slipped, or gave way to temptation. In England they are working hard for the establishment of the two principles of First, total abstinence for the individual, and Second, total prohibition towards the traffic.

In regard to their own progress at home he had nothing new to tell. It is true they have three million total abstainers, and four thousand Good Templar lodges, and that the U. K. Alliance is expending twenty thousand pounds Sterling, a year in their agitation while the various leagues and other national organizations are hard at work. But having said that he must yet admit that though England never before had so many church and other christian societies and organizations, its jails and hospitals were never so full and never more paupers caused by the terrible liquor traffic were never more numerous. It was the richest nation in the world, and yet had amongst its people the most wretchedness and destitution. The people however were fast making the discovery that a man can live and prosper without liquor and they are now trying to establish the fact that a town can live without liquor. Such towns were now in existence among themselves and their prosperity and success were doing much to convince the nation. In the Province of Canterbury there were 1400 places without a liquor shop, and with men and women without liquor in them, and the statement on the authority of hundreds of the Church of England clergymen including the Bishops, was such as might be expected in regard to the beneficial effects.

Some seemed to be of the opinion that, at any rate, a community in Ireland could not be without liquor, but

Dr. Ruttan said he thought this move a very important one, and one that required the very gravest consideration, and thought that those who presented the petitions should take the floor and show why the prayer should be granted.

Mr. Gibson said he had got short notice of the meeting, but he thought the matter a step in the right direction. If we must have licenses, he went in for such public houses as would be for the public good, and thought the present move of raising the licenses would have a tendency to do away with some of the smaller houses, and make the remaining ones much better in every particular, better kept, better accommodation, and less drunkenness. It had been said by some that if the liquor business was done away with the town would not prosper, but he maintained the town would prosper just as well, and the public houses would succeed just as well without liquor selling. The fewer houses there were the better able they would be to pay a higher license. However, the Council would have no power to pass such a law, that was in the hands of the people, and it was for them to say whether it would become law or not. It was within the power of the Council to make such a law, but then the people could either ratify or reject it. In moving the granting of the prayer he did so freely. It was nothing more than right that the petition of any number of people of the town should have consideration at the hands of the Council.

Mr. Huffman endorsed what had been said by Mr. Gibson. The Council were in duty bound to consider the petition, but it was for the people to say whether it would become a law or not.

Mr. Geddes thought Mr. Gibson's remarks very plausible in some respects, but did not think it advisable at the present time to raise the license fee, especially to the amount asked for in the petition, as it was altogether too large. Our taxes were already very high, and with high rents and the in-

THE PUBLIC MEETING

The Methodist Episcopal Church, the largest and finest public building in town was kindly furnished for the meeting. Though it is capable of holding over one fourth of our entire population it was found too small for the occasion, as every part of the building was crowded and more room was wanted.

The Mayor presided, and religious exercises were conducted by Rev. W. S. Blackstock of the Wesleyan Church.

The chairman said that Mr. Raper was the Parliamentary Agent of the United Kingdom Alliance, and probably no man in England better understood the workings of Legislation in behalf of the temperance movement. As the Mayor he could in behalf of the town assure him of a cordial welcome here. He was glad to say that our County Council, now in session, had accepted an invitation to be present in a body and would present an address. It was the first time our County Council had ever so appeared. He was also glad that the large and prosperous Workingmen's Association was present as a body and would present an address; and one would also be presented by the Good Templars.

Mr. Hogle, the Warden, then presented the address of the County Council, Mr. Allen that of the Workingmen, and Mr. Hanson of the Good Templars.

upon while the various leagues and other national organizations are hard at work. But having said that he must yet admit that though England never before had so many church and other christian societies and organizations, its jails and hospitals were never so full and never more paupers caused by the terrible liquor traffic were never more numerous. It was the richest nation in the world, and yet had amongst its people the most wretchedness and destitution. The people however were fast making the discovery that a man can live and prospered without liquor and they are now trying to establish the fact that a town can live without liquor. Such towns were now in existence among themselves and their prosperity and success were doing much to convince the nation. In the Province of Canterbury there were 1400 places without a liquor shop, and with men and women without liquor in them, and the statement on the authority of hundreds of the Church of England clergymen including the Bishops, was such as might be expected in regard to the beneficial effects.

Some seemed to be of the opinion that, at any rate, a community in Ireland could not be without liquor, but there the experiment had been more fully tried. In Tyrone there was a section of 61½ miles, including seven townships, without a liquor shop. There was once a Police Station in the centre but now it had been abandoned as there was no use for it. The London Times once denied there was such a place. He (Mr. Raper) went there to see for himself. He was met by Mr. J. K. Tenner, of Dungannon Station, Tyrone, and was drawn by a carriage and pair of horses that had been presented to Mr. Tenner by his tenants as a token of their gratitude for having swept off the liquor shops. When at a public meeting there he asked if it was true that no liquors could be got by the people. One man in the vast hall stated that he got it but had to go nine miles for the purpose. When asked if he wanted it nearer he remarked that, on the whole, it was probably as well where it is. Now in regard to the financial results he would say that inside of that line the tax rates were 9½ pence, and in the adjoining County they were 16 pence.

The Marquis of Hartington reduced the number of public houses on his estate to one, thinking there ought to be some at least. One Sunday in going from church, he saw seven drunken men about there, and then he resolved to have that one swept off, and Eggleston had none now, with most satisfactory results.

The great work of the United Kingdom Alliance has been the agitation for a Permissive Bill by the Parliament, providing, as does the Dunkin Act in Canada, that where a majority of the electors in any locality vote for prohi-the town would prosper just as well, and the public houses would succeed just as well without liquor selling. The fewer houses there were the better able they would be to pay a higher license. However, the Council would have no power to pass such a law, that was in the hands of the people, and it was for them to say whether it would become law or not. It was nothing more than right that the petition of any number of people of the town should have consideration at the hands of the Council.

Mr. Huffman endorsed what had been said by Mr. Gibson. The Council were in duty bound to consider the petition, but it was for the people to say whether it would become a law or not.

Mr. Geddes thought Mr. Gibson's remarks very plausible in some respects, but did not think it advisable at the present time to raise the license fee, especially to the amount asked for in the petition, as it was altogether too large. Our taxes were already very high, and with high rents and the increased taxation on liquors, he thought the keepers of public houses had as much to pay as they ought to. He was of opinion that if an Inspector were appointed who would do his duty, they might be able to pay a small advance, as there were a number of unlicensed houses in town that were known to be selling liquor by the glass.

Mr. James said, the question to be considered was, shall the by-law remain as it is now, at its extreme limit, or shall a new one be drafted and submitted to the people for ratification. The parties whose petitions were before the Council had a perfect right to make the request they did. The Council were the representatives of the people, and as such were bound to entertain their reasonable requests, no matter from what source they emanated. If they (the people) saw fit, they could put the sum of each license at $400 or $1,000. Mr. Crooks, in the Ontario Legislature, the other day, had brought up a motion on this very subject, and he was very sorry it had been deferred till a future day; but he understood the motion to be one that would take the matter of licensing public houses out of the hands of municipalities, and he would be glad such a thing would become law. He was in favor of granting the prayer of the petition.

There arose some discussion as to the increase of each license asked for in the petition, and some of the members were of opinion that if the petition were granted the by-law would leave to raise the license to $400, but the Mayor ruled such was not the case.

After the by-law was introduced it was for the Council to say what amount would be inserted. They could make it either greater or less.

Dr. Rutan wished to know if this petition had come from the taxpayers or the business men of the town. He was free to admit that the Workingman's Temperance Association had done a good work in the cause of temperance in the town, and was very glad to see it, and congratulated them on their success, but thought the petition ought to be set aside. In looking over the list of names attached to the petition, he missed hundreds of names who ought to have been on it before it should have the consideration of the Council. He could not see why a special meeting had been called on the strength of such a petition. Were these men heavy stakeholders in the town; were they men who were interested in the welfare of it? On the contrary, they were not even a respectable minority. He argued there was a great misapprehension in regard to the sale of intoxicating liquors. It was a perfectly legal business, and in all civilized countries people had a right to manufacture and sell any commodity of a legal nature. If it could be shown that the manufacture and sale of liquor was wrong, then we had a right to put it down. People were not forced to become drinkers or to go into taverns, they had no business to, but some of them would rather than not. It was not the use we had to contend against, but the abuse; and if carried to excess we had laws to punish the offenders. In olden times it was the custom of the Government to supply everything for sale, and now the tavern keepers received a certificate that they had complied with the law and were entitled to sell liquor just the same as any other commodity, and to have the protection of the people in so doing. The revenue received from the manufacture of liquor was greater than on any other thing, except tobacco, and he did not believe in cutting it off. He was a friend of temperance, but did not believe in injustice. The petitioners were misled by men who had been ringing this subject into their ears for years; had read nothing but what was of a one-sided nature. He would like to see at least six hotels here, kept by responsible men, and that the Council ought to know before licenses were granted, to whom they were giving them. On the whole, Napanee was a sober place, and we had no right to be ashamed of it as it was.

Mr. James followed in defence of the petitioners, on whom, he said, the Doctor had cast a slur, because in looking over the names he had found no doctors on it, and, after some further rebutting remarks, took his seat.

The amendment was then put and lost.

Mr. Gibson then moved for leave to introduce a by-law, seconded by Mr. Huffman.

The by-law was then read a first

As an outward application in all cases of pain or lameness, nothing like it has ever been known. One bottle will cure any case of Lame Back or Cerk in the Back. For diseases of the Spine and Contraction of the Muscles it is unequalled. In Rheumatic or any other pain the first application does you good. It stops Ear Ache and the pain of a Burn in three minutes, and is altogether the best and cheapest medicine ever offered to the people—the cheapest, because it takes so little to do you good. It is composed of six of the best oils known, and nothing but oils. Is worth its weight in gold. Why not buy it today?—A. B. Des ROCHERS, assistant postmaster, Arthabaskaville, P. ## THE MERCER TRIAL.

A FAILURE OF THE PLAINTIFF'S CASE.

Public attention has lately been directed to the Mercer will case, which for weeks past has been argued before Vice-Chancellor Blake in the Court of Chancery, Toronto. The late Andrew Mercer died in Toronto about 1871 and left property estimated at some $200,000, which in consequence of the deceased having made no will was taken possession of by the Crown. THE MERCER TRIAL.

A FAILURE OF THE PLAINTIFF'S CASE.

Public attention has lately been directed to the Mercer will case, which for weeks past has been argued before Vice-Chancellor Blake in the Court of Chancery, Toronto. The revelations which the trial brought out have proved the eccentricities of a lonely bachelor, but they have at the same time shown the serpentine wiles of a woman.
 The late Andrew Mercer died in Toronto about 1871 and left property estimated at some $200,000, which in consequence of the deceased having made no will was taken possession of by the Crown. During his life time Mercer had in his employ as housekeeper Bridget O'Reilly, who appears from the evidence given at the trial, to have led him the 'devil's own life.' While looking after the domestic affairs of Mercer, this woman was confined of a son.
 After the old man's death an alleged will was found by a lawyer's clerk in a book at the residence of the late Andrew Mercer, and also at the same time Bridget O'Reilly became possessed of a marriage certificate purporting to be the record of a marriage ceremony between herself and the late Andrew Mercer. The alleged will conveyed all the property left by Mercer to his said wife and son. The evidence given at the trial was of a very conflicting character, although the weight of the testimony was against the claim Bridget O'Reilly sets up of being the wife of the late Andrew Mercer. Vice Chancellor Blake gave judgement, declaring positively that in his opinion the evidence brought forward to prove that Bridget O'Reilly was by general reputation regarded as the wife of Andrew Mercer was entirely inadequate, that the marriage entry in the parish register of Toronto Gore was a forgery, that the alleged will was equally a forgery, and the whole case of the plainaiff's was evidently an attempt to perpetrate a gross fraud upon the defendants the Attorney General and Mr. R. D. Mercer, nephew of deceased. The case will be carried to appeal.

Local News.

MARKET TOLLS.—The market tolls were sold on Tuesday last to Philip Embury, for $980,—$60 in advance of what was paid for them this year.

FOX CHASE.—Will come off at the Land Rink, this Saturday afternoon, at 3 o'clock. A Carnival will also take place at the above rink next Wednesday night. 2nd of February.

HAMBURG.—The Anniversary services of the M. E. Church in this place are to be held D. D., on Sabbath the 6th Feb. First class men are being provided for the occasion. Two or three sermons on Sabbath, and able addresses on Monday evening in connection with the Tea.

SNOW.—On Tuesday we had a slight fall of snow, so that the sleighs and cutters were once more in use, and the merry jingle of the bells had an enlivening tendency. We are in hopes it will soon be followed by another and still greater fall, as there is nothing more required just now.

THE FIRE ENGINE.—The firemen had the steamer out on Monday afternoon for practice, but she was not deemed to be in very good condition for a fire, and she was overhauled by G. L. Mair & Bro., and again taken out on Tuesday, when everything was found to be in good order. We trust it will not soon be required, however.

CLEARING SALES.—Intending purchasers will do well to read our advertising columns. T. Molloy and the Davis Bros. announce great sacrifices in their entire stock of goods for the next thirty days, everything being marked down to cost. Both of these firms have immense stocks, and they have concluded, though early in the season, to meet the demands of the times, and let the people have the benefit of their profits.

We direct attention to the advertisement of Samuel Huff & Sons in other columns. They have recently added new machinery to their premises.

It will be seen that the Dunkin By-Law is again to be tested in the Township of Ernestown. We have only space this week to refer to the advertisement, to be found in another column.

REMEMBER the Missionary Anniversaries in the U. Methodist Church here next Sunday and Monday evening. Rev. T. W. Jeffrey, so popular at Napanee, is expected to preach morning and evening on Sunday.

A BY-LAW raising the rate of tavern and shop licenses in Napanee to $300 a year, has been submitted by the Council for a vote of the people. The vote will take place on the 14th of February. See our report of the Council's proceedings on another page.

SCOTTISH VOCALISM.—Many sons of Auld Scotia in Napanee and vicinity will be pleased to learn that the Kennedy Family of Scottish Vocalists are to give an entertainment here on Monday evening, February 14th. There is probably no vocalists in Canada better known than the Kennedy's, and all who attend will enjoy the programme of "Twa Hours at Hame."

STILL INCREASING.—The business at the Brisco House is wonderfully increasing since it came under Mr. Soby's control. Already he has added large commercial sample rooms, and more are needed. This morning he informs us that he has seven Commercial Travellers and hardly knows where to find room for them.

Twenty suits, of Fine Clothing made to order will be sold at less than cost price at Slaven & Ironsides.

SELBY.—The first anniversary in connection with the new M. E. Church will be celebrated on Sunday, Feb. 13th. A sermon will be preached morning and evening by Bishop Carman. On Monday evening the annual tea meeting will be held, after which Bishop Carman will give his great lecture on "Trade and get rich." Mrs. Lane of Napanee and others will give splendid music.

The Missionary meetings in connection with the C. M. Church of the Selby circuit were held last week and were successful. The meeting at the new Selby Church on Thursday evening was unusually good, and the financial receipts in advance of last year. The meeting was addressed by Revs. A. Smith, W. Blackstock, and S. Micht.

of Miss Churchill, that by unanimous request she was induced to remain over and give one more right. On Saturday evening a better audience, composed principally of the elite of the town, greeted her, as her fame had been spread around during the day by "dodgers" issued at the request, and signed by some of the leading persons present the first night. To say that Miss Churchill is a lady of very high culture is "drawing it very mildly." As a reader and delineator of the characters portrayed by the poets, she excels. It would be hard to particularize any of her selections, but her rendition of "Hiawatha" (famine scene), invests the piece with a grandness that few, even of accomplished readers, ever could find in it before. In this piece, as well as in "My Darling's Shoes," the reader displayed a great deal of emotion, not only bringing tears from many of her audience, but the crystal drops may be seen to course down her own cheek. In the piece "Widow Bedotte's Courtship," she had her audience convulsed in laughter, and the fine looking lady of a few minutes before could hardly be recognized as the shrivelled up "Widow Bedotte." We have no space to give any further remarks on her different pieces, but we unhesitatingly recommend Miss Churchill to our brethren of the press, and the public throughout the Dominion.

THE TRACT SOCIETY,

As an additional sign of progress we have to report this week the formation of a Napanee branch of the Upper Canada Religious Tract Society, in affiliation with the parent Tract Society of London, England. The Rev. Mr. Eastman preached in both of the Methodist Churches of the town, on Sabbath, and addressed a public meeting in the Methodist Episcopal Church on Monday evening. On the latter occasion the Rev. gentleman gave a lucid statement of the principles of the Society, and the mode of its operations; he gave an interesting description of some of the principle fields of its labors, and of the results which it had achieved, and he pointed out some of the advantages which might be expected to accrue from its operations in this place in furnishing suitable employment for persons connected with the several

WE direct attention to the advertisement of Samuel Huff & Sons in other columns. They have recently added new machinery to their premises, and are now turning out their work better and with greater despatch than ever before. They are displaying a great deal of enterprise, and deserve the patronage of the public. Their work wherever seen, speaks for itself. They will not be undersold, and their work will be found as good as the best.

PATRONS OF HUSBANDRY.—Our friend Mitchell Nevell, Esq., and W. N. Harris, Esq., have been appointed Deputies by the Dominion Grange of the Patrons of Husbandry with power to organize granges wherever desired. Those desiring information or public lectures on the subject will do well to address them to Napanee P. O. They are both gentlemen of good standing and ability, and well able to present favorably the claims of the Order to the public.

LECTURES—A course of three lectures will be delivered in the Town Hall here, by the Rev. Mr. Marples, of Underwood controversy fame, on the evenings of Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday, 25th, 26th and 27th instants. Subject, 1st night, "St. Patrick, and the introduction of Christianity into Ireland." 2nd night, "John Knox and the Reformation in Scotland." 3rd night, "Oliver Cromwell and the Commonwealth of England." Admission 10 Cents. Tickets for the whole course, 20c. To commence each evening at 8 o'clock.

NAPANEE MILLS.—We are glad to learn that the Social on Friday evening last at the new Napanee Mills Church was a very successful one. The handsome sum of $84 was raised by tickets and subscriptions. The Sunday services were well attended. The sermons were in the morning by Rev. W. S. Blackstock; in the afternoon by Rev. B. Lane, and in the evening by Rev. J. Fergusson. The congregation now boasts of one of the best Churches in the County.

The paper mills are now in full blast, day and night, and we are glad to learn that the paper is being sold as fast as made. Indeed we believe there are now orders for some tons of paper more than there is on hand. We are not aware that any mill of the kind in the Province is now turning out so good a quality of printing paper.

A SAD SPECTACLE.—There is now in the jail here an idiot boy by the name of Abrams, who has been an inmate for over a year. During that time he has taken fits, sometimes as many as eight a day. On Thursday last while standing near the stove in one of the corridors he fell upon it in a fit and had his face and hands burned in a frightful manner, making him one of the most hideous looking creatures we have ever seen. Is it not a pity that such cases are sent to the jail to be got rid of, while there are asylums for the idiotic and insane, and where the government have a large number of men and women employed who are annually drawing large salaries for the care of such persons?

A SENSATION.—On Saturday last

As an additional sign of progress we have to report this week the formation of a Napanee branch of the Upper Canada Religious Tract Society, in affiliation with the parent Tract Society of London, England. The Rev. Mr. Eastman preached in both of the Methodist Churches of the town, on Sabbath, and addressed a public meeting in the Methodist Episcopal Church on Monday evening. The result was the formation of a Branch Society, of which the following are the officers:—President, Charles Lane; vice President, A. C. Davis; Sec., J. McGee; Treasurer, M. Nevill. The committee is composed of a representative from each of the churches of the town as follows:—L. Gibson, Thomas Henry, Thomas Gibson, and R. J. Wright, together with the several Protestant ministers of the town.

THE DEAF MUTE EXHIBITION.

DR. PALMER'S VISIT.

The promised visit of Dr. Palmer, the Superintendent of the Provincial Deaf and Dumb Asylum, of Belleville, with a number of the unfortunate inmates of the Asylum, was made to Napanee on Tuesday, and his visit here will long be remembered with satisfaction. Seldom has any visit to our town created greater interest and more sympathy with the noble object. The desire of Dr. Palmer is to inform the general public of the manner in which the unfortunate "children of silence" are being taught and cared for in our Provincial Institution, and at the same time to secure the co-operation of all in giving the advantages of the institution to every child in the Province thus unfortunate. We may here state that while in Napanee Dr. Palmer ascertained the names of several children in this county, and steps are being taken

WIDE AWAKE for February is a very noticeable number of this rapidly-growing magazine for the children and young folks. The engravings are unusually fine. The magazine opens with an excellent picture by Miss C. A. Northam, illustrating a charming Valentine story by Mrs. Mary E. Bradley, "How They Made it Up." But the two distinguished features of WIDE AWAKE this month are the long letter in the "Poets' Homes" series, relative to Mrs. A. D. T. Whitney, and the initial paper of the "Behaving" series. The latter is prepared by the author of "The Ugly Girl Papers." Dr. Tourjee's musical page contains a hint of infinite value to every person who teaches music to children. Only $2.00 per annum. D. Lothrop & Co., Boston.

day and night, and we are glad to learn that the paper is being sold as fast as made. Indeed we believe there are now orders for some tons of paper more than there is on hand. We are not aware that any mill of the kind in the Province is now turning out so good a quality of printing paper.

A SAD SPECTACLE.—There is now in the jail here an idiot boy by the name of Abrams, who has been an inmate for over a year. During that time he has taken fits, sometimes as many as eight a day. On Thursday last while standing near the stoye in one of the corridors he fell upon it in a fit and had his face and hands burned in a frightful manner, making him one of the most hideous looking creatures we have ever seen. Is it not a pity that such cases are sent to the jail to be got rid of, while there are asylums for the idiotic and insane, and where the government have a large number of men and women employed who are annually drawing large salaries for the care of such persons?

A SENSATION.—On Saturday last quite a sensation was created on our streets by a procession of youngsters trimmed up with flying colors, the foremost wearing a beaver hat and having a "collar" round his neck which almost extended to his feet, made of board, on which was pasted T. Molloy's great clearing sale bills. Following him came two others bearing an immense tin horn blown by a third, while the rear of the procession was brought up by "bell ringers" and others distributing bills. On the line of march, several horses became enchanted with the music and began to dance a reel, and one team we happened to see standing alone, dashed away at a lively gait, spilling the contents of their load along the street. Where they brought up we don't know. Tom may rely upon it, it was a capital advertisement, and if he does not have crowds flocking to his store this week it will not be his fault.

"AN HOUR WITH THE POETS".—On Friday evening last, Miss F. H. Churchill,—an American lady of some celebrity,—appeared at the Town Hall in the above entertainment. There was a very small audience present, as her entertainment had not been sufficiently announced, but so enraptured were those who did attend, with the reading

Henry, Thomas Gibson, and Mr. Wright, together with the several Protestant ministers of the town.

THE DEAF MUTE EXHIBITION.

DR. PALMER'S VISIT.

The promised visit of Dr. Palmer, the Superintendent of the Provincial Deaf and Dumb Asylum, of Belleville, with a number of the unfortunate inmates of the Asylum, was made to Napanee on Tuesday, and his visit here will long be remembered with satisfaction. Seldom has any visit to our town created greater interest and more sympathy with the noble object. The desire of Dr. Palmer is to inform the general public of the manner in which the unfortunate "children of silence" are being taught and cared for in our Provincial Institution, and at the same time to secure the co-operation of all in giving the advantages of the institution to every child in the Province thus unfortunate. We may here state that while in Napanee Dr. Palmer ascertained the names of several children in this county, and steps are being taken to get them to the Institution as soon as possible.

He was accompanied to Napanee by Prof. Green, of the Institute, and seven of the scholars, four of whom are from this County. They are Master William Johnson, of Napanee; John Coxall, of Napanee; Anson P. Vanliven, of Mervin; Hannah M. Barnhart, (an Indian girl, whose parents lived in Adolphustown;) Nellie Flight, of Toronto; Georgiana McCallum, of Toronto; and Wm. Kay of Stratford. In the afternoon the children of all the schools in town were invited to go to the Town Hall, and witness the proficiency of those scholars. The Hall was crowded to its utmost capacity by the interested little ones, who were delighted with what they saw. Dr. Palmer explained to them how, by showing an object, such as hat, or a key, to one of these children and writing its name on the black board, they first learned what its name was, and then they were taught what sign of the hand would represent each letter, and thus the Deaf and Dumb alphabet was taught them, and so by being taught to write, and the sign alphabet, they soon were able to communicate with others. They are then taught to read and soon have the means of informing themselves and becoming intelligent.

In the evening it was announced that there would be a public entertainment in the Town Hall, but long before the time appointed the Hall was crowded, and as hundreds more were coming, it was announced that the Trustees of the large M. E. Church had kindly offered to throw it open for the evening. There was a rush for the church and a jam and press at the door such as we never before saw in Napanee.

Probably over one thousand persons found admission in the church, and numbers went away, either fearing that the building would give way, or because they could not find room at all.

Mayor Williams took the chair and Dr. Palmer again gave an exhibition of the method of teaching and the proficiency of the scholars, most of whom showed much intelligence, with an intimate knowledge of Scripture history, and of the current events of the country. Prof. Green, himself a deaf mute, gave some recitations, and renderings of the character of the Policeman, the Lawyer, the Doctor, and the politician, such as few words could add to the force of, much to the amusement of all present. His rendering of Christ stilling the tempest was very graphic and impressing.

The party remained in town until Wednesday evening, and were driven about to points of interest and every attention paid them by our citizens. They expressed themselves delighted with the visit here, and went home by the evening train.

We intend, in a future issue of the EXPRESS to give an illustration of the Asylum and a fuller article in regard to the extent and method of work. We are glad to say that Prof. Green has promised us a letter for next issue giving his impressions of Napanee and its people.

EPPE'S COCOA.—GRATEFUL AND COMFORTING.
—By a thorough knowledge of the natural laws which govern the operations of digestion and nutrition, and by a careful application of the fine properties of well-selected cocoa, Mr. Eppe has provided our breakfast tables with a delicately flavoured beverage which may save us many heavy doctor bills. It is by the judicious use of such articles of diet that a constitution may be gradually built up until strong enough to resist every tendency to disease. Hundreds of subtle maladies are floating around us ready to attack wherever there is a weak point. We may escape many a fatal shaft by keeping ourselves well fortified with pure blood and a properly nourished frame."

Really skilful physicians are not so numerous that their virtues need no mention, and hence the advertisement of Dr. R. V. Pierce of Buffalo, may well claim the reader's attention. Dr. Pierce is a type of a class of men who obtain success by careful and well-directed effort, not attempting too much, or creating false ideas as to ability. The only reliable physician in these days of complicated disorders and high-pressure living is the "Specialist," the man who understands his one branch of business, such in his line is Dr. Pierce. For the benefit of his readers he has written a "Common Sense Medical Adviser," which is well worth reading by those who need such a work. With strict business honor, high professional skill, reasonable fees, and a large corps of competent assistants, Dr. Pierce will doubtless make his name familiar as "household words."—St. Louis Globe.

RELEASE.

If one had watched a prisoner many a year,
Standing behind a barred window-pane,
Fettered with heavy handcuff and with chain,
And gazing on the blue sky, far and clear;
And suddenly some morning he should hear
The man had in the night contrived to gain
His freedom and was safe, would this bring pain?

Ah! would it not to dullest heart appear
Good tidings?

Yesterday I looked on one
Who lay as if asleep in perfect peace.
His long imprisonment for life was done.
Eternity's great freedom his release
Had brought. Yet they who loved him called him dead,
And wept, refusing to be comforted.

"Mary, don't you speak to me in that way," said Mrs. Wouwermans, drawing herself up.

"I shall speak in just that way to anybody who comes meddling with what they have no business with. If you was my mistress, I'd tell you to suit yourself to a better girl; and I shall ask Mrs. Henderson if I am to be over-looked in this way. No lady would ever do it," said Mary, with a hot emphasis on the word lady, and tears of rath in her eyes.

"There's no use in being impertinent, Mary," said Mrs. Wouwermans, with stately superiority, as she turned and sailed up stairs, leaving Mary in a temper of important anger.

Just about this time Eva returned from her walk with a basket full of cut flowers, and came singing into the kitchen and began arranging flower vases; not having looked into the parlour on her way, she did not detect the traces of Aunt Maria's presence.

"Well, Mary," she called, in her usual cheerful tone, "come and look at my flowers."

But Mary came not, although Eva perceived her with her back turned in the parlour.

"I never pet servants," said Mrs. Wouwermans, briefly. "Depend on it, Eva, when you've lived as long as I have, you'll find it isn't the way. It makes them presumptuous and exacting. Why, as to the air, it's mostly due to Mary's perfect neatness and carefulness. I'm sorry to say you wouldn't always find my room as trimly arranged as hers, for I am a sad hand to throw things about when I am in a hurry. I love order, but I like somebody else to keep it."

"I'm afraid," said Aunt Maria, returning with persistence to her subject. "that you are beginning wrong with Mary, and you'll have trouble in the end. Now I saw she had white sugar in the kitchen sugar-bowl, and there was the tea caddy for her to go to. It's abominable to have servants feel that they must use such tea as we do."

"Oh, well, aunty, you know Mary has been in the family so long I don't feel as if she were a servant; she seems like a friend, and I treat her like one. I believe Mary really loves us."

"It don't do to mix sentiment and business," said Aunt Maria, with sententious emphasis. "I never do. I don't want my servants to love me—that is not what I have them for. I want them to do my work, and take their wages. They understand that there are to be no favors—everything is specifically set down in the bargain I make with them; their work is all marked out. I never talk with them, or encourage them to talk to me, and that is the way we get along."

"Dear me, Aunt Maria, that may be very well for such an energetic, capable housekeeper as you are, who always know exactly how to manage, but such a poor little thing as I am can't set up in that way. Now I think it's a great mercy and savour to have a trained girl that knows more about how to get on than I do, and that is fond of me. Why, I know rich people that would be only too glad to give Mary double what we give, just to have somebody to depend on."

"But, Eva, child, you're beginning wrong—you ought not to leave things to Mary as you do. You ought to attend to everything yourself. I always do."

"But you see, aunty, the case is among the notables, and, with due care and thought and economy, a person with your air and style, and your taste, can appear as well as anybody. I came down here, among other things, to look over your dresses, and see what can be done with them."

"Oh, thank you a thousand times, aunty, dear, but what do you think all my little wedding finery would do for me in an assemblage of Worth's spick-and-span new toilettes? In our own little social circle I am quite a leader of the mode, but I should look like an old last night's bouquet among all their fresh finery!"

"Well, now, Eva, child, you talk of economy and all that, and then go spending on knick-knacks and mere fancies what would enable you to make a very creditable figure in society."

"Really, aunty, is it possible now, when I thought we were being so prudent?"

"Well, there's your wood fire, for instance; very cheerful, I admit, but it's a downright piece of extravagance. I know that the very richest and most elegant people, that have everything they can think of, have fallen back on the fancy of having open wood fires in their parlours, just for a sort of ornament to their rooms, but you don't really need it—your furnace keeps you warm enough."

"But, aunty, it looks so bright and cheerful, and Harry is so fond of it! We only have it evenings, when he comes home tired, and he says the very sight of it rests him."

"There you go, new Eva—with wood at fifteen dollars a cord!—going in for a mere luxury just because it pleases your fancy, and you can't go into society because it's so expensive. Eva, child, that's just like you. And there are twenty other little things that I see about here," said Aunt Maria, glancing round, "pretty enough, but each costs a little. There for instance, those cut flowers in the vases cost something."

"But, aunty, I got them of a poor little man just setting up a green-house, and Harry and I have made up our minds that it's our duty to patronize him. I am going up to Sophie's to get her to take flowers for her parties of him."

"It's well enough to get Sophie to do it, but you oughtn't to afford it," said Aunt Maria: "nor need you buy

"Well, Mary," she called, in her usual cheerful tone, "come and look at my flowers."

But Mary came not, although Eva perceived her with her back turned in the pantry.

"Why, Mary, what is the matter?" said Eva, following her there and seeing her crying. "Why, you dear soul, what has happened? Are you sick?"

"Your Aunt Maria has been here."

"Oh, the horrors, Mary. Poor Aunt Maria! you mustn't mind a word she says. Don't worry, now—don't—you know Aunt Maria is always saying things to us girls, but we don't mind it, you mustn't; we know she means well, and we just let it pass for what it's worth."

"Yes; you are young ladies, and I am only a poor woman, and it comes hard on me. She's been round looking into every crack and corner, and picked up those old cabbage leaves, and talked to me about keeping a cellar that would give you all a fever—it's too bad. You know yesterday I hurried and cut up that cabbage to help make out the dinner when those gentlemen came in and we had only the cold mutton, and I was going to clear them away this very morning."

"I know it, Mary; and you do the impossible for us all twenty times a day, if you did drop cabbage leaves once; and Aunt Maria has no business to be poking about my house and prying into our management; but, you see, Mary, she's my aunt, and I can't quarrel with her. I'm sorry, but we must just bear it as well as we can—promise not to mind it—for my sake."

"Well, for your sake, Miss Eva," said Marry wiping her eyes.

"You know we all think you are a perfect jewel, Mary, and couldn't get along a minute without you. As to Aunt Maria, she's old, and set in her way, and the best way is not to mind her."

And Mary was consoled, and went on her way with courage, and with about as much charity for Mrs. Wou-vermans as an average good Christian under equal provocation.

"But, Eva, child, you're beginning wrong—you ought not to leave things to Mary as you do. You ought to attend to everything yourself. I always do."

"But you see, aunt, the case is very different with you and me. You are so capable and smart, and know so exactly how everything ought to be done, you can make your own terms with everybody. And, now I think of it, how lucky that you came in! I want you to give me your judgment as to two pieces of linen that I've just had sent in. You know, aunt, I am such a perfect ignoramus about these matters."

And Eva tripped up stairs, congratulating herself on turning the subject, and putting her aunt's busy advising faculties to some harmless and innocent use. So, when she came down with her two pieces of linen, Aunt Maria tested and pulled them this way and that, in the approved style of a domestic expert, and gave judgment at last with an authoritative air.

"This is the best, Eva—you see it has a round thread, and very little dressing."

"And why is the round thread best, aunt?"

"Oh, because it always is—everybody knows that, child; all good judges will tell you to buy the round threaded linen, that's perfectly understood."

Eva did not pursue the inquiry farther, and we must all confess that Mrs. Wou-vermans' reply was about as satisfactory as those one gets to most philosophical inquiries as to why and wherefore. If our reader doubts that, let him listen to the course of modern arguments on some of the most profound problems; so far as can be seen, they consist of inflections of Aunt Maria's style of statement—as, "Oh, of course everybody knows that now," or, negatively, "Oh, nobody believes that, now-a-days." Surely, a mode of argument which very wise persons apply fearlessly to subjects like death, judgment and eternity, may answer for a piece of linen.

"It's well enough to get Sophie to do it, but you oughtn't to afford it," said Aunt Maria; "nor need you buy a new matting and pictures for your servant's room."

"Oh, aunt, mattings are so cheap; and those pictures didn't cost much, and they make Mary so happy!"

"Oh, she'd be happy enough any way. You ought to look out a little for yourself, child."

"Well, I do. Now, just look at the expense of going to parties. To begin with, it annihilates all your dresses, at one fell swoop. If I make up my mind, for instance, not to go to parties this winter, I have dresses enough and pretty enough for all my occasions. The minute I decide I must go, I have nothing, absolutely nothing to wear. There must be an immediate outlay. A hundred dollars would be a small estimate for all the additions necessary to make me appear with credit. Even if I take my old dresses as the foundation, and use my unparalleled good taste, there are trimmings, and dress-maker's bills, and gloves, and slippers, and fifty things; and then a carriage for the evening, at five dollars a night, and all for what? What does anybody get at a great buzzing party, to pay for all this? Then Harry has to use all his time, and all his nerves, and all his strength on his work. He is driven hard all the time with writing, making up the paper, and overseeing at the office. And you know parties don't begin till near ten o'clock, and if he is out till twelve he doesn't rest well, nor I either—it's just so much taken out of our life—and we don't either of us enjoy it. Now, why should we put out our wood-fire that we do enjoy, and scrimp in our flowers, and scrimp in our home comforts, and in our servant's comforts, just to get what we don't want after all?"

"Oh, well, I suppose you are like other new married folks, you want to play Darby and Joan in your chimney-corner," said Aunt Maria, "but, for all that, I think there are duties to soci-

Eva went on singing and making up her vases, and carried them into the parlour, and was absorbed in managing their respective positions, when Aunt Maria came down from her tour in the chambers.

"Seems to me, Eva, that your hired girl's room is furnished up for a princess," she began, after the morning greetings had been exchanged.

"What, Mary's? Well, Mary has a great deal of neatness and taste, and always took particular pride in her room when she lived at mamma's, and so, I have arranged hers with special care. Harry got her those pictures of the Madonna and infant Jesus, and I gave the penitier for holy water, over her bed. We matted the floor nicely, and I made that toilet table, and draped her looking-glass out of an old muslin dress of mine. The pleasure Mary takes in it all makes it really worth while to gratify her."

Surely, a mode of argument which very wise persons apply fearlessly to subjects like death, judgment and eternity, may answer for a piece of linen.

"Why, by-the-by, Eva, I see you have cards there for Mrs. Wat Sydney's receptions this winter," said Aunt Maria, turning her attention to the card plate. "They are going to be very brilliant, I'm told. They say nothing like their new house is to be seen in this country."

"Yes," said Eva, "Sophie has been down here urging me to come up and see her rooms, and says they depend on me for their receptions, and I'm going up some day to lunch with her, in a quiet way; but Harry and I have about made up our minds that we shan't go to parties. You know, aunty, we are going in for economy, and this sort of thing costs so much."

"But, bless your soul, child, what is money for?" said Aunt Maria, innocently. If you have any thing you ought to improve your advantages of getting on in society. It's important to Harry in his profession to be seen and heard of, and to push his way

"I don't know about that," said Eva. "We are going to try it."

"What! living without society?"

"Oh, as to that, we shall see our friends other ways. I can see Sophie a great deal better in a quiet morning-call than an evening reception; for the fact is, whoever else you see at a party you don't see your hostess—she hasn't a word for you. Then, I'm going to have an evening here."

"You an evening?"

"Why, who do you propose to invite?"

"Oh, all our folks, and Bolton and Jim Fellows; then there are a good many interesting, intelligent men that write for the magazine, and, besides, our acquaintances on this street."

"In this street? Why their isn't a creature here," said Aunt Maria.

"Yes, there are those old ladies across the way."

"What? old Miss Dorcas Vanderheyden and that Mrs. Benthussen? Well, they belong to an ancient New York family, to be sure; but they are old as Mathusaleh."

"So much the better, aunty. Old things, you know, are all the rage just now; and then their's my little Quaker neighbor."

"Why, how odd! They are nice enough, I suppose, and well enough to have neighbors; but he's nothing but a watchmaker. He actually works for Tiffany!"

"Yes; but he is a very modest, intelligent young man, and very well informed on certain subjects. Harry says he has learned a great deal from him."

"Well, well, child, I suppose you must take your own way," said Aunt Maria.

"I suppose we must," said Eva, shaking her head with much gravity. "You see, aunty, dear, a wife must accommodate herself to her husband, and if Harry thinks this is the best way, you know—and he does think so, very strongly—and isn't it lucky that I think just as he does? You wouldn't have me fall in with those strong-minded Bloomer women, would you, and sail the ship on my own account, independently of my husband?"

Now, the merest allusion to modern strong-mindedness in woman was to Aunt Maria like a red rag to a bull; it aroused all her combativeness.

"No; I am sure I wouldn't," she said with emphasis. "If there's anything, Eva, where I see the use of all my instructions to you, it is the good sense with which you resist all such new-fangled, abominable notions about rights and sphere of woman. No; I've always said that the head of the woman is the man; and it's a wife's duty to live to please her husband. She may try to influence him—she ought to do that—but she never ought to do it openly. I never used to oppose Mr. Wouwermans. I was always careful to let him suppose he was having his own way; but I generally managed to get mine," and Aunt Maria plumed herself and nodded archly, as an aged priestess who is communicating to a young neophyte secrets of wisdom.

—and we all like him. Alice likes him, and I don't wonder at it."

"Well, are they engaged?" said Aunt Maria, with an air of statistical accuracy.

"How should I know? I never thought of asking. I'm not a police detective, and I always think that if my friends have anything they want me to know, they'll tell me; and if they don't want me to know, why should I ask them?"

"Dear me, aunty; how you excite my curiosity. Pray who is it?" said Eva.

"Well, I'm not at liberty to tell you more particularly; but I knew he's thinking about her; and this report about her and Jim would operate very prejudicially. Now shall I have a talk with Alice, or will you?"

"Oh, aunty dear, don't, for pity's sake, say a word to Alice. Young girls are so sensitive about such things. If it must be talked of, let me talk with Alice."

"I really thought, if I had a good chance, I'd say something to the young man himself," said Aunt Maria, reflectively.

"Oh, good heavens! aunty, don't think of it. You don't know Jim Fellows."

"But Jim is the most peculiar—"

"Oh, I know all about him. Do you suppose I've seen him in and out in the family all this time without understanding him perfectly?"

"But I don't really think that there is the least of anything serious between him and Alice."

"Very likely. He would not be at all a desirable match for Alice. He has very little property, and is rather a wild, rattling fellow; and I don't like newspaper men generally."

"Oh, aunty, that's severe now. You forgot Harry."

"Oh, well, your husband is an exception; but, as a general rule, I don't like 'em—unprincipled lot I believe," said Aunt Maria, with a decisive nod of her head. "At any rate, Alice can do better, and she ought to."

The ringing of the lunch bell interrupted the conversation, much to the relief of Eva, who discovered with real alarm the course her represented relative's thoughts were taking.

Of old she had learned that the only

"That's because you let them have their own way," said her sister. "You can keep servants if you don't follow them up, and insist on it that they shall do their duty. Let them run all over you and live like mistresses, and you can keep them. For my part, I like to change—new brooms always sweep clean."

"Well, it's a different thing, Maria—you with your small family, and mine with so many. I'd rather bear anything than change."

"Oh, well, yes; I suppose there's no help for it, Nelly. Of course I wasn't blaming you, so don't fire up about it. I know you can't make yourself over," said Aunt Maria. This was the tone with which she usually settled discussions with those who differed from her on modes and measures. After all, they could not be like her, so where was the use of talking?

Aunt Maria also had the advantage in all such encounters of a confessed reputation as an excellent manager. Her house was always elegant, always in order. She herself was gifted with a head for details that never failed to keep in mind the smallest item, and a wiry, compact constitution that never knew fatigue. She held the keys of everything in her house, and always turned every key at the right moment. She knew the precise weight, quantity, and quality of everything she had in possession, where it was and what it might be used for; and, as she said, could go to anything in her house without a candle in the darkest night. If her servants did not love, they feared her, and had such sense of her ever vigilant inspection that they never even tried to evade her. For the least shadow of disobedience she was ready to send them away at a moment's warning, and then go to the intelligence office and enter her name for another, and come home, put on apron and gloves, and manfully and thoroughly sustain the department till they came.

Mrs. Wouwermans, therefore, was celebrated and lauded by all her acquaintances as a perfect housekeeper and this added sanction and terror to her pronouncements when she walked the rounds as a police inspector in the houses of her relations.

It is rather amusing to a general

new-fangled, abominable notions about rights and sphere of woman. No; I've always said that the head of the woman is the man; and it's a wife's duty to live to please her husband. She may try to influence him—she ought to do that—but she never ought to do it openly. I never used to oppose Mr. Wouwermans. I was always careful to let him suppose he was having his own way; but I generally managed to get mine," and Aunt Maria plumed herself and nodded archly, as an aged priestess who is communicating to a young neophyte secrets of wisdom.

In her own private mind, Eva thought this the most terrible sort of hypocrisy; but her aunt was so settled and contented in all her own practical views, that there was not the least use in arguing the case. However, she couldn't help saying innocently,

"But, aunty, I should be afraid sometimes he would have found me out, and then he'd be angry."

"Oh, no; trust me for that," said Aunt Maria, complacently. "I never managed so bunglingly as that. Somehow or other, he didn't exactly know how, he found things coming round my way; but I never opposed him openly—I never got his back up. You see, Eva, these men, if they do get their backs up, are terrible, but any of them can be led by the nose—so I'm glad to find that you begin the right way. Now, there's your mother—I've been telling her this morning that it's her duty to make your father go back into business and retrieve his fortunes. He's got a good position, to be sure—a respectable salary; but there's no sort of reason why he shouldn't die worth his two or three millions as well as half the other men who fail, and are up again in two or three years. But Nelly wants force. She is no manager. If I were your father's wife, I should set him on his feet again pretty soon. Nelly is such a little dependent body. She was saying this morning how would she ever have got along with her family without me! But there are some things that even I can't do—nobody but a wife could, and Nelly isn't up to it."

"Poor, dear little mamma," said Eva.

"But are you quite sure, Aunt Maria, that her ways are not better adapted to papa than any one's else could be? Papa is very positive, though so very quiet. He is devoted to mamma."

"Then, again, aunty, there is a good deal of risk in going into speculations like newspaper men generally."

"Oh, aunty, that's severe now. You forgot Harry?"

The ringing of the lunch bell interrupted the conversation, much to the relief of Eva, who discovered with real alarm the course her represented relative's thoughts were taking.

Of old she had learned that the only result of arguing a point with her was to make her more set in her own way, and she therefore bent all her forces of agreeableness to produce a diversion of mind to other topics. On the principle that doctors apply mustard to the feet, to divert the too abundant blood from the head, Eva started a brisk controversy with Aunt Maria on another topic, in hopes, by exhausting her energies there, to put this out of her mind. With what success her strategy was crowned, it will remain to be seen.

CHAPTER VI.

THE KENTLING OF THE WATERS.

It will not be doubted by those who know the ways of family dictators, that Mrs. Maria Wouwermans left Eva's house after her day's visit in a state of the most balmy self-satisfaction, as one who has done a good day's work.

"Well, I've been up at Eva's," she said to her sister, as she looked in on returning, "and really it was a well I went in. That Mary of hers is getting careless and negligent, just as all old servants do, and I just went over the whole house, and had a plain talk with Mary. She flew up about it, and was impertinent, of course; but I put her down, and I talked plainly to Eva about the way she's beginning with her servants. She's just like you, Nelly, slack and good-natured, and needs somebody to keep her up. I told her the way she is beginning—of petting Mary, and fussing up her room with carpet and pictures, and everything, just like any other—wouldn't work. Servants must be kept in their places."

Now, Mrs. Van Aradel had a spirit of her own; and the off-hand, matter-of-fact manner in which her sister was accustomed to speak of her as no manager touched a vital point. What housekeeper likes to have her capacity to

to send them away at a moment's warning, and then go to the intelligence office and enter her name for another, and come home, put on apron and gloves, and manfully and thoroughly sustain the department till they came.

Mrs. Wouwermans, therefore, was celebrated and lauded by all her acquaintances as a perfect housekeeper and this added sanction and terror to her pronunciamentos when she walked the rounds as a police inspector in the houses of her relations.

It is rather amusing to a general looker-on in this odd world of ours to contrast the scene, cheerful good faith with which these constitutionally active individuals go about criticising, and suggesting, and directing right and left, with the dismay and confusion of mind they leave behind them wherever they operate.

They are often what the world calls well-meaning people, animated by a most benevolent spirit, and have no more intention of giving offence than a nettle has of stinging. A large, vigorous, well-growing nettle has no consciousness of the sting it leaves in the delicate hands that have been in contact with it; it has simply acted out its innocent and respectable nature as a nettle. But a nettle armed with the power of locomotion on an ambulatory tour, is something the results of which may be fearful to contemplate.

So, after the departure of Aunt Maria our little housekeeper, Eva, was left in a state of considerable nervousness and anxiety, feeling that she had been weighed in the balance of perfection and found woefully wanting. She was conscious, to begin with, that her characteristic virtues as a housekeeper, if she had any, were not entirely in the style of her good relative. She was not by nature statistical, nor given to accounts and figures. She was not sharp and keen in bargains; she was, he felt in her inmost, trembling soul, a little mollusk, without a bit of a shell, hiding in a cowardly way under a rock, and ready at any time to be crushed up by big fishes. She had felt so in her unlimited trust in Mary, knew more than she did "about" sleeping—but she had been convinced by her aunt's cross-questions of signed the very signet ring of her house into her hands, and she let Mary go all over the house? Did she put away the washing?

THE SETTling OF THE WATERS.

It will not be doubted by those who know the ways of family dictators, that Mrs. Maria Wouvernans left Eva's house after her day's visit in a state of the most balmy self-satisfaction, as one who has done a good day's work.

"Well, I've been up at Eva's," she said to her sister, as she looked in on returning, "and really it was well I went in. That Mary of hers is getting careless and negligent, just as all old servants do, and I just went over the whole house, and had a plain talk with Mary. She flew up about it, and was impertinent, of course; but I put her down, and I talked plainly to Eva about the way she's beginning with her servants. She's just like you, Nelly, slack and good-natured, and needs somebody to keep her up. I told her the way she is beginning—of petting Mary, and fussing up her room with carpet and pictures, and everything, just like any other—wouldn't work. Servants must be kept in their places."

Now, Mrs. Van Arsdel had a spirit of her own; and the off-hand, matter-of-fact manner in which her sister was accustomed to speak of her as no manager touched a vital point. What housekeeper likes to have her capacity to guide a house assailed? Is not that the spot where her glory dwells, if she has any? And it is all the more provoking when such charges are thrown out in perfect good nature, not as designed to offend, but thrown in par parentheses as something everybody would acknowledge, and too evident to require discussion. While proceeding in the main part of a discourse Mrs. Wouvernans was quite in the habit of these frank side disclosures of her opinion of her sister's management, and for the most part they were submitted to in acquiescent silence, rather than to provoke a controversy; but to be called "slack" to her face without protest or rejoinder was more than she could bear; so Mrs. Van Arsdel spoke up with spirit:

"Maria, you are always talking as if I don't know how to manage servants. All I know is that you are always changing, and I keep mine years and ous, well-growing nettle has no consciousness of the sting it leaves in the delicate hands that have been in contact with it; it has simply acted out its innocent and respectable nature as a nettle. But a nettle armed with the power of locomotion on an ambulatory tour, is something the results of which may be fearful to contemplate.

So, after the departure of Aunt Maria our little housekeeper, Eva, was left in a state of considerable nervousness and anxiety, feeling that she had been weighed in the balance of perfection and found woefully wanting. She was conscious, to begin with, that her characteristic virtues as a housekeeper, if she had any, were not entirely in the style of her good relative. She was not by nature statistical, nor given to accounts and figures. She was not sharp and keen in bargains; she was, he felt in her inmost, trembling soul, a little mollusk, without a bit of a shell, hiding in a cowardly way under a rock, and ready at any time to be picked up by big fishes. She had felt so in her unlimited trust in Mary, new more than she did about her aunt's cross-questions of signed the very signet ring of her house into her hands. Did she put away the washing? Did she count her drawers and tea-spoons, and cupboard? To tell all these satisfactory results began aright. Whimsical people, the duum of self-distrust of the nature we have ever vigorously and skilfully defended their time.

Eva went over and over in her own mind her self-justification—she told herself that she and her aunt were essentially different people, incapable of understanding each other sympathetically, or acting in each other's interests. That the well-meant, positive her relative were to be let go for what they were worth, and no more.

A CANADIAN HERMIT—NAKED FOR FORTY YEARS

Incredible as the following may appear, it is an authentic fact, to which hundreds can bear testimony:—

About forty years ago a young man named Wilson, residing near the town of Perth, conceived the lunatic idea of leading a hermit's life. The youth had from his early age showed symptoms of derangement, and this proceeding on his part was not considered strange by his friends. The chosen place of his hermitage was about three-quarters of a mile from his parental homestead, in the recess of a dense bush, where he erected a small hovel, and furnished it with an old log canoe, which he used as a couch to sleep in. Divesting himself of all clothing he has ever since remained perfectly nude, with the exception of a tattered remnant of a shirt, which his fancy leads him to retain. In his nude state, for forty years, he has lived walking in the depth of winter through the snow, and yet he has never been known to receive a frost bite. When he requires a drink he walks deliberately into the river, it mattering not to him what season of the year it may be, and wades out till the water reaches his waist, and then he stoops and quenches his thirst. His food is brought to him by his friends, and when given to him is eaten with the voraciousness of an animal which he now resembles more than man, his body being as heavily coated with hair as that of a cow. He never shows a dangerous disposition, and chatters in monosyllables. When people cross his path he evidently begs for tobacco, for which he has an evident partiality, and in chattering tones will utter "bacca" until his request is granted. His hair is long, gray, and unkempt, falling far over his shoulders, and his beard, which is similar, reaching down below his waist. He is now between sixty and seventy years of age, and is possibly the only living being ever known to have lived year after year perfectly naked and exposed to all inclemencies of the weather which mark our Canadian winters.

SOME QUEER RAILWAY BUILDERS.

There were workmen on the Pacific Railway even more curious than the Irish or Chinese natives. During the Summer of 1868, the Laramie River became very low, much to the distress of a contractor who had cut a great many thousand cross-ties—the timbers on which the rails are laid—and which he expected to float down to the point where the railroad was to cross. He was at first at a loss to know what to do, but resolved, finally, to build dams across the river at various points, and, when the stream was thus made high enough, set his rafts afloat. Large parties of men, therefore, went to work building dams. No sooner would the men leave off work at night, than thousands of beavers would begin, and work hard at the dam during the whole night.

Water is always as necessary to the comfort of beavers as on this occasion it was probably for this reason, and not because they wished to see the railroad finished, that the beaver community joined in the labor of building the dams.

ANCIENT USAGE.

That the ladies may more fully realize their advantage a book has been hunted up entitled "Love, Courtship, and Matrimony," published in 1660, ten years before the death of Shakspeare, which contains this explanation regarding ladies' privileges in leap-year:—"Albeit, it is now become a part of the common law, in regard to social relations of life, that as often as every bisextile year doth return, the ladies have the sole privilege, during the time it continueth, of making love unto the men, which they do, either by wordes or looks, as to them it seemeth proper; and, moreover, no man will be entitled to the benefit of the clergy who dothe in any wise treat her proposal with slight or contumely."

WHY DO THE CLOUDS FLOAT?

For too long a time the scientific world has believed in the idea of De Saussure—that the water particles of which clouds and fogs consists, are yetticles. analogous to soap-bubbles.

A WISE KING.

His Majesty King Kalakaua, who, it will be remembered, visited the United States last year, has inaugurated a good movement amongst his people. Recently, it is said, he called a meeting at Honolulu, of the soldiers and all employed in the palace, and urged upon them the importance of their adopting total abstinence principles. Whilst he would refrain from issuing any authoritative order on this point, the king expressed a wish that all before him would examine the question for themselves. He desired, he said, to see his people temperate, industrious, and prosperous. A reform was needed throughout the islands and he was anxious that it should begin in the palace. Such an example would be highly influential, and would be certain to extend to the rest of his subjects. It would be difficult to enforce a prohibitory law in the Hawaii Islands, as liquor would be smuggled into the country or retailed to the natives by masters of vessels, and to enforce the law would be almost, if not quite, an impossibility for the Government. Next day the pledge was prepared, and all who choose were invited to sign the document.—Religious Intelligencer.

AN EXAMPLE.

The following story is told of the late Dr. Hook, Dean of Chichester. His great interest in the working classes was shown, among other acts, by his signing the temperance pledge in order to save a man whom he saw to be giving way to drinking. Telling the story in his own words, in speaking of the time when he was the Rector of Leeds, he said :

"Albeit, it is now become a part of the common law, in regard to social relations of life, that as often as every bisextile year doth return, the ladies have the sole privilege, during the time it continueth, of making love unto the men, which they doe, either by wordes or looks, as to them it seemeth proper; and, moreover, no man will be entitled to the benefit of the clergy who dothe in any wise treat her proposal with slight or contumely."

WHY DO THE CLOUDS FLOAT?

For too long a time the scientific world has believed in the idea of De Saussure—that the water particles of which clouds and fogs consist, are vesicles, analogous to soap-bubbles, consisting of a watery envelop. with a vacuum inside so as to be specifically lighter than the air. It is strange that the fact is continually being overlooked that if particles are only small enough they may be kept up in a liquid or gas, notwithstanding that the material of which they are parts is considerably heavier than the medium in which they float. Powders of heavy material may be kept up in water for days and weeks, as those who prepare polishing powders know. The finest emery is only obtained from water from which the coarse particles have been deposited in different periods of time, according to their fineness, when at last after collecting the deposits of many hours, and even days, the very finest parts do not settle until after many weeks' rest.

It is the same in the air, if we collect the dust deposited in a room which has been closed for some weeks, and examine it, we will find it all to consist of particles of very heavy materials, and if machine shops are in the neighborhood, even metallic dust will be recognized.

Now when heavy metallic dust can be carried in the air, why not water dust, which is much lighter? In viewing the grand fall of Niagara, we have noticed that, when the atmosphere was not too dry, so as to cause the spray to disappear, while the sky was covered with loose floating clouds, the spray in ascending formed a cloud identical to the others, with which it floated away.

The height at which clouds will float depends chiefly on the size of the watery particles; the larger they are the lower the clouds will float. This was recently verified by Mr. Angus Smith in Iceland where he observed a of Napanee for their kind patronage, since she came to the town, and wishes to intimate to them that she

His great interest in the working classes was shown, among other acts, by his signing the temperance pledge in order to save a man whom he saw to be giving way to drinking. Telling the story in his own words, in speaking of the time when he was the Rector of Leeds, he said :

'Now, suppose you abstain altogether for six months'

'Well, if I will, will you, sir?' was his reply.

'Yes, I said, 'I will.'

'What !' said he 'from beer, from spirits, and from wine ?'

'Yes.'

'And how shall I know if you keep your promise ?'

'Why, you ask my missus and I'll ask yours.'

'It was agreed between us for six months at first; and afterwards we renewed the promise. He never resumed the bad habit that he left off, and is now a prosperous and happy man in business at St. Petersburg, and I am Dean of Chichester.'

Two gamblers have been converted by Methodists in Portland, Oregon. One of them upon his first attendance at a class meeting, handed to the leader a worn dice box and the dice. "Those have been my means of livelihood for years," he said "and I've become so expert with them that I can beat a game in which loaded dice are used against me. I haven't any other trade, and it is like trading competence for poverty to give up my tools." Nobody doubted the genuineness of that conversion.

when at last after collecting the deposits of many hours, and even days, the very finest parts do not settle until after many weeks' rest.

It is the same in the air, if we collect the dust deposited in a room which has been closed for some weeks, and examine it, we will find it all to consist of particles of very heavy materials, and if machine shops are in the neighborhood, even metallic dust will be recognized.

In viewing the grand fall of Niagara, we have noticed that, when the atmosphere was not too dry, so as to cause the spray to disappear, while the sky was covered with loose floating clouds, the spray in ascending formed a cloud identical to the others, with which it floated away.

The height at which clouds will float depends chiefly on the size of the watery particles; the larger they are the lower the clouds will float. This was recently verified by Mr. Angus Smith in Iceland where he observed a cloud or fog rolling down the street like dust or smoke; it came from the sea, and the particles hollow, but concrete throughout, and in his account refers also to the absurdity of the theory that the cloud particles should consist of hollow spheres of vesicles.

The power which holds small and heavy particles up in a liquid or gas, is simply the adhesion, which increases with the surface. The finer the dust is the larger is the surface as compared with the volume, and when the adhesive action of the liquid or gas on this large surface is great enough, it may overcome gravitation, and the particles can not fall, but will be kept floating.

That there is a strong adhesion between air and water is proved by the effect of wind on the surface of the water, especially when compared with the effect of the wind on a watery surface lubricated with a film of oil; then the air glides over it without causing even a ripple. On this depends the quieting effect of oil when poured on turbulent waves when they are caused by wind. Oil poured on the waves of the rapids of the St. Lawrence river would by no means have that same quieting effect.

FROM C H E A P S I D E.

As the season of compliments and congratulations is at hand, we heartily wish our customers and friends a very "Merry Christmas" and a "Happy New Year," with many returns of the festive season. We are deedly grateful because of the more than liberal patronage which we have received during the past year. It is a significant fact that while others are bemoaning the less trade and dull times, our business has steadily increased with each month and by the close of this year we shall be able to show a clear increase of thirty per cent over last years' trade. So much for Fair Square dealing and no "Jewing" it is a proof to us that our endeavors to keep our stock constantly assorted with the newest and most attractive goods, and also to dispose of them at the Smallest Living Profits, have been duly appreciated by the discriminating public. We shall continue to preserve the same course of action as during the past year, mending where we have erred or changing our course where our experience with a large and increasing business and extended knowledge of the requirements of the trade may dictate. We hope, with the inaugural of the new year, to see many new customers as well as old friends, and every energy will be put forth to please and give the very best value for their money. We may mention here that although we have always been noted for keeping the BEST BLACK LUSTRES, we have lately made arrangements for the supply of a PARTICULAR BRAND, which is superior to anything we have ever before offered, and we believe, superior in value to anything now offered for sale in town. Everything in the line of Dry Goods, Carpets, Millinery, &c., is now offered at very close prices. A call and inspection will convince.

Again wishing you many Happy New Years,
